

Mellon Is Attacked As Enemy of Legion By Col. Alvin Owsley

Treasury Head Wants Unrestricted Immigration in Order to Swell Fortune, He Asserts. ATTITUDE OF HARDING DRAWS TEXAN'S FIRE

Shipping Board and Administration of Veterans' Bureau Come in for Severe Criticism.

Secretary Andrew Mellon, of the treasury department, tries to block every move of the American Legion to secure benefits for ex-service men, and is in favor of unrestricted immigration in order that he may exploit cheap labor and continue to swell his personal fortune, which grew during the war from about $100,000,000 to several hundred million, declared Col. Alvin M. Owsley, commander of the American Legion, at a mass meeting at the Baptist Tabernacle Wednesday night.

The address before the citizens of Atlanta marked the climax of "American Legion day" as proclaimed by Mayor Walter A. Sims in honor of the one-day visit of National Commander Owsley.

His President Harding. President Harding's attitude toward the proposed adjusted compensation bill was severely criticized by Col. Owsley, who declared that the bill would be passed even over Harding's veto.

The shipping board was criticized for its action in accepting the note of German singers in payment of their passage to America, and the administration of the veterans' bureau was criticized because of the obstacles placed in the way of effectiveness through too many "fat political jobs" being handed out in this bureau.

Asa W. Candler President. Col. Owsley's formal introduction to the public came at this mass meeting. Asa W. Candler, chairman of the reception committee, presided, announcing that Eugene H. Black, who was scheduled for an address, had been detained in New York.

Basil Blackbridge took the place of Mr. Black on the program, and was followed by Rodney S. Cohen, state commander, who was introduced by Chairman Candler.

In introducing Commander Cohen, Mr. Candler paid a high compliment to his administration of the state department, mentioning the remarkable increase in membership in the state during his administration and attributed it largely to the aggressive and effective work of the state commander.

Mr. Cohen responded, disclaiming credit for success of membership work, and attributing it to the close co-operation of the individual posts of the state. He introduced Commander Owsley to the public, and for the second time during the day an ovation that indicated the enthusiasm of an audience was given the legion leader.

Praise for Tech. Col. Owsley commented on the question of preparedness, and declared that Georgia was making a great contribution to the safety of the state and nation through support of such institutions as Georgia Tech, where he had just witnessed a parade of from 1,500 to 2,000 southern boys.

In discussing the legion program for the preservation of American ideals, Col. Owsley spoke at length of the immigration problem, declaring that the legion stood for total exclusion of immigrants at this time. He pointed out that the legion was the first

U. S. TIGHTENS NET AROUND ALLEGED EVADERS OF TAXES

Indictments Charging False Returns on Income Taxes Begin to Show in Eastern Cities.

U. S. FAR BEHIND IN CHECKING OF RECEIPTS

Government Needs 10,000 New Workers to Right Chaotic Condition in Accounting Offices.

New York, March 14.—With Tuesday the last day on which federal taxes may be paid on last year's income, the government today began jacking up citizens alleged to have failed to report their entire receipts in other years.

While last minute returns for 1922 were pouring into internal revenue offices this afternoon, a federal grand jury in Manhattan indicted John T. Hettrick, famous "code of practice" lawyer exposed by the Lockwood legislative committee, which investigated the building trust, on a charge of perjury.

It was alleged that the lawyer had reported an income of only $24,500 for 1919, with taxes of $221, whereas his income was $50,000, on which he should have paid $5,370.

At the same time a federal grand jury in Brooklyn indicted Frank Cielisick, a real estate operator and stock promoter, for alleged failure to report his entire income in 1920.

Cielisick paid a tax which investigators considered too small. The case was passed along to Washington and orders were received to make a more extensive investigation, as a result of which it was alleged that the promoter owed the government $1,952,000 in taxes and penalties, on an income of about $3,000,000.

Swamped With Mail. Collectors of internal revenue in this district, the financial heart of the nation, who wrestled today with vast heaps of mail, paused long enough in their labors to announce that they would stay open until midnight tomorrow for rate returns, and to make caustic comment on some of the first returns they had inspected.

Collector Rafferty, in Brooklyn, casting his eye on contributions to churches and charitable institutions, which are exempt from tax, said that if these institutions had received "if the gifts credited to them by taxpayers they would need no more funds this year at least.

Meanwhile, announcement was made that the government was six years behind in auditing returns and that expert accountants were urgently needed. Government agents said they only now were completing their audit for 1917, and that $300,000,000 additional in taxes due the government already had been uncovered. It was pointed out by these agents that if this amount could be culled each year from old tax returns the government could hope to collect more than one billion dollars in taxes, which in turn would pay for the returns it had overlooked.

10,000 Workers Needed. In setting forth the country's need for accountants, the agents said that approximately 10,000 positions, paying $1,800 to $3,000 a year annually were needed. The government, with 25,000,000 returns still to audit, was said to be rapidly sliding behind in its work.

Field agents of the government working in this district predicted that if this amount could be culled each year from old tax returns the government could hope to collect more than one billion dollars in taxes, which in turn would pay for the returns it had overlooked.

Profits in Wall street during last year have been extremely rare. One deputy collector, who has helped prepare 200 returns of persons trading in Wall street said he had not found even one that showed a loss.

Paints and Mops Are Honor Marks In Atlanta Today

Campaign Gets Under Way for a Cleaner and Brighter City.

BY RALPH T. JONES.

There are movers and shakers to meet all situations in life. For the next two weeks, however, there is one quotation that is going to be repeated and again. It is going to be driven home into the consciousness and the sub-consciousness of every Atlantan, if the civic organizations can do it.

Here's said proverb: "Cleanliness is next to godliness." Backed by every civic organization, an official "Clean-up and Paint-up" campaign begins today, to last for two weeks. Efforts will be made to have every Atlantan take an active part in the work, to see that his or her section of the city is made spotless, sanitary and beautiful before April 1.

Cleaning Up Parks. L. L. Wallis, manager of the city parks, is showing the greatest interest in this campaign. Ever since he took office, on the first of the year, Mr. Wallis has devoted his entire efforts to cleaning up the city parks. The job is not finished yet, but the city parks are rapidly losing that littered, overgrown, shabby look which used to seem their natural state, and are becoming neat and orderly, well swept, well garnished and well polished gems scattered around the municipal diadem.

Vines and undergrowth have been cleared out and burnt. The timber has been thinned. Roadways have been rolled and graded until it is now possible to go anywhere in an automobile. Tanks have been terraced and grass seed has been scattered freely over all the bare spots of red clay which marred the beauty of the lands, and rubbish has been gathered up and carted away to the dump grounds.

New Coats of Paint. Next, when the cleaning up process has been so well begun, will come the day of the paint brush. Every building, every bench, every swing, post and wooden railing in all of the city's many parks will receive its new coat of paint. Out in Grant Park the work has already begun. The zoo building and the boat house have received a matty coat of red on the outside, and the former building has been made spotlessly white inside with whitewash.

In Piedmont Park there is one spot where a new baseball diamond is to be laid out, in place of the tangle of weeds and undergrowth which formerly covered it. In another park a wide space is being leveled for a parade ground for the state troops. The water has been drained out of the lake, preparatory to a thorough cleaning of the bottom.

Thursday begins the official period of the clean-up and paint-up campaign. As stated, it is backed by every civic organization in the city. There are many different branches to the work to be done during the campaign. Business men, housewives, school children and other classes are all to be enlisted in the work. There are to be prizes and commendations galore for good soldiers in the cause.

Mr. Wallis, however, is hereby nominated for great big boss of glory in this war against dirt. Because he is practicing the idea every day in the year, in his department, and is giving everyone an object lesson that ought to be the campaign objective for 52 weeks per year, instead of the official two.

GEORGIANS MUST FILE INCOME TAX RETURNS TODAY

Today is the last day for filing income tax returns without being penalized. The fact is called to the attention of the public by Josiah T. Rose, collector of internal revenue, who also stated that the office in the federal building would remain open until 8 o'clock at night for filing belated returns.

Collector's offices throughout Georgia will be kept open until 8 o'clock, Mr. Rose announced.

All single persons having an income of $1,000 per year or more, and all married persons having an income of $2,000 a year or more, regardless of exemptions, are required to file a return.

All corporations and all partnerships, regardless of net profits or losses, are required to file returns.

Aviator Bill Philen and Miss Annie Mae Wells Are Married on Candler Field.

Although a veritable deluge of various and sundry divorce petitions in Fulton superior court would convince most persons that weddings are accompanied by sufficient perils, Bill Philen, stunt flyer for Aviator A. B. McMullen, decided to add one more—a ceremony performed in the air, high above the home of the bride.

Everything was set Tuesday afternoon, it was learned Wednesday, for the marriage to take place as per schedule.

Miss Annie Mae Wells, popular young woman of East Point, the ring minister, the license, bride and groom were on hand. And then a stiff wind interfered.

Not daring to risk the machine in the wind, the ceremony was performed in the machine, while it was safely parked on Candler field.

Dr. Charles L. Bass, chaplain for the Southern railway, and a personal friend of the young couple, performed the nuptials. Flyer A. B. McMullen, owner of the plane; Francis E. Price, Constitution photographer, and the Hapeville chief of police were the only witnesses.

Philen, who is an experienced flyer, had planned to take Miss Wells and the chaplain for an air ride and have the ceremony performed while the machine circled over the Wells home, but rather than wait for the wind to subside, he instructed the minister to proceed with the affair as the plane rested on the earth.

Special Dry Agent Will Probe Charge Made Against Hahr

Constitution Bureau, Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, March 14.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—The charges against W. H. Hahr, assistant prohibition director in Georgia, which resulted in his suspension, will be investigated by a special agent of the prohibition office here, it developed today when Senator William J. Harris called on Assistant Prohibition Commissioner Jones. Senator Harris said he had read the charges and the reply, adding it seemed that an injustice had been done Hahr who was suspended on a report by Special Agent Golding.

The main charges against Hahr, it was said here, is lack of co-operation, based upon Hahr's refusal to order two of the clerks in his office on a raiding party at the demand of Agent Golding. Later Hahr agreed to let the clerks go on the special work although he couched his authority to order that class of employees on raiding work.

Announcement was made Tuesday by Director Fred Dismuke, of the local office, that he would support Mr. Hahr until some more serious charge was brought against him than the one recently made by Golding.

Two Germans Killed As Series of Riots Break Out in Ruhr

FORMER PREMIER RAPS ISOLATION POLICY OF BRITAIN

Lloyd George Attacks Tory Regime's Stand on Ruhr Question—Fears New European Catastrophe.

BY RALPH H. TURNER. United News Staff Correspondent.

London, March 14.—David Lloyd George has started his assault on the Tory government of Premier Bonar Law. The former premier, at a dinner attended by his followers in the house of commons, Wednesday, denounced the "do nothing" policy of the government, especially in European affairs.

"It is not pleasant," said Lloyd George, "to see that Europe is conferring and acting as if the British empire is not in existence. Britain is not even consulted when questions are being settled which affected the whole future of Europe and our own future."

Concerning the situation which has arisen because of the French occupation of the Ruhr, the fiery Welshman declared:

Says Britain Impotent. "The longer this thing goes on, the greater will be the catastrophe. There is no doubt but what troubles are being built that will inevitably bring such catastrophe on Europe as we have hardly ever seen."

"While this tragedy is developing, we are here wringing our hands in helpless impotence."

Lloyd George declared that the recent by-elections, in which three members of the Bonar Law government were defeated, showed that the government had grown less popular, adding that no ministry in recent times had so rapidly and completely lost prestige.

Pleads for Unity. The former premier pleaded for unity between the two branches of the liberal party—the Georgians, whom he was addressing, and the Aquinians. The results of the next general election, he predicted, would be disastrous to the liberal cause if the two wings were not brought together.

Concerning the appeal of Herbert Asquith for liberal unity, Lloyd George said the best way to attain that end would be through a conference of liberal leaders.

The liberals, he said, do not intend to fight the laborites but do contemplate fighting the revolutionary forces in the labor party.

Japan Rejects China's Proposal to Abrogate Treaty Made in 1915

Tokio, March 14.—(By the Associated Press.)—Japan today rejected China's proposal to abrogate the Sino-Japanese treaty of 1915, which contained the so-called "Twenty-one demands," and extended for 50 years the Japanese leases on Kwangtung peninsula, including Dalmi and Port Arthur.

Invaders Strengthen Position at Buer, Storm Center of Latest Civilian Outbreaks.

RUMORS OF AMERICAN INTERVENTION SCOUTED

Hughes Denies British Feelers on the Question. Secretary Waits on Franco-German Request.

Berlin, March 14.—The Ruhr volcano—Buer—is in eruption again. Two Germans were killed and several, including one woman, were wounded Wednesday when fresh riots broke out in Buer, where the civilian population and the French troops are seething with hatred, according to word received here.

The latest casualties which make a total of eleven—two Frenchmen and nine Germans—who have been slain in recent disturbances there, resulted when the French attempted to disperse a mob which apparently was seeking revenge for the deaths of seven inhabitants who were killed a few days ago.

French troops, re-inforcements to those already in possession of Buer, are en route to the Buer storm center, advisers received here declare.

Fear Reign of Terror. Three of the Germans who were slain in week-end riots were buried Wednesday. The French permitted only relatives to attend the ceremonies. These simple funerals were in striking contrast to the burial of the two Frenchmen, whose bodies were found riddled with bullets on the outskirts of the city. An escort of troops led the procession to the city hall, where the bodies lay in state until they were conducted to the cemetery. A full military funeral, conducted by a Belgian chaplain, was accorded the victims.

A reign of terror is feared at Gelsenkirchen, where two additional regiments of French soldiers have arrived. The French have ordered the green security police to leave the Ruhr at once, on penalty of a year's imprisonment.

Denies Rumors. Washington, March 14.—State department officials insist that despite the rumors abroad regarding possible American intervention, there is no change in the attitude of this government. Officials denied that Great Britain had dispatched feelers to Washington regarding joint intervention. So far as could be learned, Secretary Hughes is ready to assist in mediating upon the invitation of France and Germany, but refuses to consider any proposals which do not have the joint support of the two governments.

WOODROW WILSON IS FIRST DONOR TO LEGION FUND

Indianapolis, Ind., March 14.—Woodrow Wilson, commander-in-chief of the members of the American legion during the world war days, was the first prominent war leader to contribute to the legion's $100,000 endowment fund, which will provide for the permanent decoration of 32,100 graves of America's war dead in Europe. Receipt of the former president's contribution to the fund was announced at the national headquarters of the legion here today.

HEARING IN BEAVERS CASE SET FOR TODAY

Depositions Have Already Been Taken by Court Commissioner.

Hearing of certiorari proceedings brought by Chief of Police James L. Beavers against the police committee of council, probably will begin this afternoon, it was indicated Wednesday at the courthouse.

Originally the case was set for 9:30 o'clock Thursday morning, but owing to the recess Wednesday of the Fulton courts in respect to Luther Z. Rosser, whose death occurred Tuesday morning, a delay in the hearing was expected.

Testimony in the hearing has already been taken by a commissioner of the court. The depositions are expected to play an important part in the hearing.

In seeking a writ of prohibition which will prevent the police committee from trying Chief Beavers on charges of inefficiency, Attorney George Spence, representing Beavers, contends that the committee is disqualified to give the chief a fair trial because of pre-judgment. He contends that its members have already agreed that the chief is incompetent.

CENTRAL OF GEORGIA COMPARES RAILWAY

EARNINGS WITH OTHER INDUSTRIES

The rate of return earned by the railways is in striking contrast to the much higher rate earned by other industries.

The rate earned on Class 1 railways in the Southern Region is as follows:

1920	0.85%
1921	2.07

(The so-called Class 1 railways comprise all the lines except the short roads earning less than $1,000,000 gross per annum.)

The rate earned by the Class 1 roads prior to Government control was as follows:

1914	4.08%
1915	3.31
1916	5.70

The Government control period is omitted because while operations were generally unprofitable, on account of increased wages and cost of material and supplies largely beyond increases in rates, the railroads were allowed the same profits they had made during the three years prior to July 1, 1917.

Here are the figures showing the return on investment in certain specified industries, which are taken from the reports of the Federal Trade Commission:

	1921	1920	1919	1918	Average
Grain Exporters	19.7	28.8%	23.9%
Grain Jobbers	27.3	19.9	23.6
Mfgs. of Tobacco Products	...	12.5	13.	...	12.7
Soft Coal Mining	...	23.	6.	...	14.5
Mfgs. of Yarns	31.	28.2	29.6
Mfgs. of Mixed Feeds	20.1	12.3	16.2
Mfgs. of Shoes	29.8	16.2	23.0

(Where blanks appear information was not available.)

From 1914 to 1918, inclusive, the average rate of return on various other industries was as follows:

Five large oil companies in California	14.9%
Manufacturers of canned milk	24.7
Wheat flour mills	23.0
Five great meat packers	16.2
Manufacturers of farm implements	10.9

All industries have good years and bad years; all, except the railways, are given an opportunity to store up a surplus during prosperous times to tide them over lean years. The railways do not criticize the profits of other industries, nor do they expect to be permitted during prosperous times to increase the price of transportation—the only commodity they have for sale, but they must be afforded an opportunity, through efficient and economical operation, if they are going to function in the interest of the public, to earn and retain a rate of return which will enable them to obtain funds to provide for large annual expenditures to meet the increasing demands of commerce.

There is an unfounded impression that the railroads are guaranteed a rate of return of 6% on their stocks and bonds. The law provides that the Interstate Commerce Commission shall say what rate of return they may earn on the value of property devoted to transportation and fix rates accordingly, yet the railroads have never even approximated the rate fixed and have had to pocket their losses. They have not earned as much as the Government guaranteed on all but the first issue of Liberty Bonds, or on recent issues of Treasury Certificates. These securities are all more attractive to the average investor than the best class of railroad bonds carrying materially higher rates of interest. This situation is of interest and importance to the public, because transportation is an essential factor of business.

The Central of Georgia Railway submits these figures as an illustration of the results of a restrictive policy which seems to us cannot safely be carried to greater extremes. We believe that these facts make answer to the attack upon the rate structure of the railroads, which is continually being waged by certain radical elements having Government ownership as their aim.

For ourselves we only ask the same treatment that is accorded industries generally, without further impairment and limitation of earning power through rate reductions and adverse legislation.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

Desire of France For Reparations Gone, Says Ponsonby

Desire for Security, However, Remains, Declares Parliament Member.

BY ARTHUR PONSONBY, M. P.
London, March 14.—The gravity of the situation in the Ruhr intensifies with every week that passes, and while, on the French side, there is a firm determination on the part of the authors of the policy to continue and to augment the pressure, the German side is equally firm in its determination to maintain the passive resistance which so far has rendered the whole French enterprise entirely futile.

The French military forces have in their power to break down Germany's passive resistance in the long run, however costly the execution of such a project may be. Hunger is a terrible weapon. In another month or so a population nearing the border of starvation could no longer hold out.

But even if they submit what then? By that time the possibility of obtaining reparations on any scale whatever will have vanished altogether. But the military staff is beginning to realize that it will require a larger force than they have at present at their command to secure an effective stranglehold over the whole area. If more troops are to be called up, this may make the at present acquiescent people of France very restive.

Poincare Strong.
Politically, it is indelible, and Poincare's eye is vigilantly fixed on the mood and temper of his own people. He is still in a strong position, but President Millerand is creating a feeling of uneasiness in the country by having it even more intensely craving for the continuance of this unfortunate adventure than the prime minister, and if the latter should waver, his fall would follow, and a successor would be chosen who would pursue an even more extreme policy, if that were possible.

The French generals, it seems, are not all of the same mind. The most baffling aspect of the case is that intelligent French opinion should for a moment believe that security can be established by these means. The idea of obtaining reparations has gone.

But the desire for security does undoubtedly remain. The reduction of Germany to such impotence as to render her militarily powerless for generations to come is an object for which French statesmen are striving and are asking their fellow countrymen to approve. But surely it requires very little foresight and a very elementary knowledge of history to calculate that a nation incensed by the most humiliating and brutal form of repression ever undertaken in time of peace will unite, sinking all political and class differences, and, if they are driven to surrender or even if they are not, aiming sure and certain national feeling to satisfy their wounded patriotism by a terrible revenge at the earliest possible moment.

Act With Wisdom.
Therefore, it should be made abundantly clear that those who criticize the policy of the French government and those who desire to curb France by whatever means possible, are not siding with their late enemies and betraying their friends, but are acting with the wisdom and consideration of a man who drags his friend, however roughly, from the brink of a precipice towards which he is carelessly and blindly walking.

But, unfortunately, our government is not doing this. They are watching him walk nearer and nearer to the brink, where the whole ground is unsafe, and where a rash motion on his part may precipitate, not only himself, but others near him, into the abyss.

Passive acquiescence, tacit neutrality, awaiting the course of events is neither a dignified nor safe attitude to adopt. In such unprecedented circumstances it may be difficult to make

Samaroff Concert Climax Of Civic Concert Series

Olga Samaroff, America's greatest pianist, closed the Atlanta Music club's civic concert series and left an indelible impression on the emotions of the 3,000 people who heard her Wednesday night at the City Auditorium. Her artistry, her power and fire, made Samaroff's concert a fitting climax to the series of remarkable musical events that has delighted Atlanta concert goers during the 1922-23 season.

Samaroff has the knack, so foreign to most artists, of making herself perfectly at home with her audience, and from the opening number to the final encore there was never a lapse in the interest displayed when she first walked onto the stage.

Unfamiliar Numbers Please.
Several of the numbers on last night's program were new to Atlanta concert-goers, and some of them, undoubtedly, left the audience wondering just what it was all about. Two of these Debussy's "Dance," and Cyril Scott's "Lotus Land," were hard to understand, but Samaroff's interpretations were interesting.

There may be other pianists who in one department or another excel Samaroff, but it may be safely said that no other pianist has appeared here in some time, whose artistry surpassed that of this great American pianist. In technique, in interpretation, in individuality, Samaroff's entire program scintillated. There were any sure forecast of the future sequence of events. But every likely path must lead to a catastrophe if events are allowed to continue without check or restraint. There may undoubtedly be international dilemmas when silence and inaction are prudent. When danger is imminent bewildered ineptitude is criminal.

When our prime minister says it would be a mistake to suggest mediation, when you know your suggestion would be rejected, he is probably right. The net is that the opportunity for emphatic and decided protest has been lost.

The French may be a long-suffering people. They would not doubt be ready to pay for some striking demonstration of French supremacy. But will they be ready to go on paying for a dangerous and humiliating failure? Time will show.

Turk Nationalists Plan Emancipation Of Moslem Women

Would Grant Sex Privileges Enjoyed by Other Women in World.

Angora, March 14.—(By the Associated Press.)—One of the most laudable aims of the nationalist regime in Turkey is to emancipate the Turkish women, who enjoy none of the freedom or privileges accorded other women of the world. The foremost exponents of women's rights in Turkey are Halid Edib Hanum, a graduate of the American girls' college at Constantinople, and Mme. Kemal Pasha, the pretty 19-year-old bride of Mustafa Kemal Pasha. Halid Edib Hanum is already well known in the United States for her work as leader of the Angora ministry of education and for her advocacy of more rational customs affecting Moslem women. Two of her sons are students at Ann Arbor, Mich.

But Mme. Kemal Pasha is a new element in Turkish civic and political life. Angora got its first glimpse of the young reformer when she returned from Smyrna, with her brilliant husband, Mustafa Kemal, who had lifted their sombre veils in amazement as they saw her step from the train dressed as a man, with riding boots, breeches and a jacket, and a jaunty outfit cap. It was evident that from the moment of her arrival she wished it to be emphasized that Mustafa Kemal Pasha, in his campaign for the emancipation of Turkish women, counted upon the full and active support of his wife.

Would Discard Veils.
It is likely that Turkish shawl and shawls and their impracticable veils for the unconventional masculine attire of Mme. Kemal, but it is certain that her advent will modify or greatly curtail the restrictions and obsolete customs prescribed for the women of Turkey by Mahomet. Mme. Kemal insists that the rules of conduct and dress prescribed by the stern founder of the Mohammedan faith centuries ago are not tenable today, and she intends to inject some western customs into Turkish feminine life.

Before the inception of the nationalist movement, Turkish women were kept in the closest seclusion and were forbidden by their men to visit friends, dance or appear in public. Their literature consisted of a cook book and a Koran. If they even glanced at a man in public they were roundly chastised by their husbands. The severest order of nuns could not have led more restrained lives. The Turkish woman was permitted out of her home only when she desired to visit a mosque. Her horizon was limited to the four walls of her home.

But with the growth of the new Turkey all this is changing. Turkish women gradually are being released from their domestic bondage and now they are getting a glimpse of real life. They now appear on the streets, and in places of entertainment in Constantinople, in almost as great numbers as foreign women. The time-honored veil or rusk is disappearing. Turkish girls no longer cast furtive glances at the young men of the capital, but mingle with them freely in the modern Moslem women insist that her husband shall have only one wife, instead of three or four as formerly.

HUTTO SAYS TANLAC
PUT HIM BACK ON FEET

Atlanta Carpenter Declares It Ended Indigestion and Restored Strength and Vigor. Can Work Full-Time Every Day Now.

As a general thing people who work out in the open and get plenty of exercise enjoy more vigorous health than those who work in doors and who lead a sedentary life. But even those who follow the carpenter trade, which brings every muscle into play, do not always escape stomach trouble, indigestion, constipation, flatulence, and other ailments.

Take, for instance, the experience of A. M. Hutto, living at 50 Howell Mill road, Atlanta, well-known carpenter for the general repair department of the Exposition Mills. He will tell you that:

"It seemed that indigestion and constipation were almost completely wrecking my health. I have worked about as hard as most men and have lived on good substantial food, but in spite of all this I suffered just about the same, and I want to say right now: when your stomach is out of fix you are sick all over.

"For several months I was in such bad shape that it seemed like no matter what I ate or how little, I disagreed with me and caused me much distress and suffering. I was in such a condition that I had to be losing a day or two from work at most intervals, and when I did manage to stick on the job quitting time found me just about all played out and my nerves mighty shaky.

"One day I was talking to the commissary clerk at the mills about my troubles, and he put me onto Tanlac. So I bought a bottle, and the third day after I started on it I noticed a big improvement in my feelings. Then I got some Tanlac Vegetable Pills and took them too. Well, sir, it seemed like no time till I was rid of the indigestion and constipation, eating hearty, relishing every bite, and working hard every day. Tanlac sure is a great medicine, for it makes the nerves stay steady and builds a man up in every way. I don't hesitate a minute to recommend it to anybody who, like myself, has to work with their hands."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Take no substitute. Over 35 million bottles sold.—(adv.)

RESPIRE GRANTED BAKER BROTHERS

Prison Board Recommends Commutation of Sentence for Ralph—Declines to Interfere for George.

Following the granting of a respite for George and Ralph Baker, by Governor Hardwick on Wednesday morning, the prison commission later in the day recommended that the death sentence of Ralph, the younger brother, be commuted to life imprisonment, but declined to recommend mercy for George, the older brother.

The Bakers, who were sentenced to death for the killing of J. W. Morton, an aged deputy sheriff of Walker county, had been sentenced to hang tomorrow, but the reprieve granted by the governor sets the new date for the execution on April 13. The reprieve was granted because Governor Hardwick is leaving the state Thursday on a trip to Florida and would not have time to read the record in the case before his departure.

In commenting upon their action in recommending mercy for Ralph, members of the prison commission Wednesday stated that their action was based solely upon the youth of the defendant. While, they stated, they did not believe he was only 15 years old, as has been claimed by the defense, they do not think he is 19, the age claimed by the prosecution. The Baker family Bible gives his date of birth as November 29, 1907, which would make him 15 now, but it was pointed out by the commissioners, there can be no doubt from the appearance of the book that this date has been tampered with and altered at some time. However, it appears to be impossible to establish his exact age beyond doubt, so they have given him the benefit of the doubt and recommended mercy.

As to George Baker it is pointed out that he was the one who provoked the entire row which resulted in the killing of Deputy Morton. He it was who struck the first blow which was followed by pistol shots. Also, the testimony, both from the lips of witnesses and by the material evidence found at the scene of the crime, proves that both of the brothers had guns and used them in the fight. This is denied by both defendants, who state that the shooting was done by Ralph. The evidence of doctors, however, declares that there were three wounds on the body of the dead man, any one of which would have proved fatal, and that one was apparently made by a bullet of different caliber than the other two. Also, a stray bullet passed through the hat of a bystander, and it is declared that this was at an angle which could not possibly have been fired from Ralph Baker's gun.

On these grounds the commission declined to interfere in the case of George Baker, and, they state, they based their recommendation for Ralph Baker solely on the question of age, after giving him the benefit of a doubt on this point.

London, March 14.—A sensational story of a plot by an Irish republican organization to murder British cabinet ministers and commit other outrages is printed today by The Daily Sketch. The newspaper connects the alleged scheme with the activities of Irishmen recently arrested in Great Britain. It says that the persons marked for assassination included Premier Bonar Law, David Lloyd George and Sir Hanratty Greenwood.

A large number of women in the organization, the Sketch asserts, obtained employment in the households of the intended victims and thus became able to supply an outside person with details of the men's movements. The conspirators' plans, according to the newspaper, also provided for the creation of disturbances through the rougher elements in the larger cities. Anxiety Expressed.

Newspapers of various shades of political opinion are expressing doubt and anxiety over last Sunday's Irish raids and the dangers to which other persons may be subjected by a similar procedure.

It is contended in these comments that under the restoration of order in Ireland, any one in England may be deported legally to Ireland without opportunity of making a statement in his own defense and can be interned there indefinitely at the pleasure of the Irish government.

The Daily Mail says that this point was admitted by a "responsible ministerial authority" who was interviewed by the newspaper.

It seems probable that the habeas corpus issue may be raised in a practical way before long and that the whole affair is likely to be forced further upon the attention of parliament.

Meanwhile, it is stated that the persons deported early this week are allowed in Mount Joy prison the same privileges accorded to prisoners arrested in Ireland and that they are soon to be removed to an internment camp.

Cotton Destroyed By Fire Near Sparta; Ignited by Lightning

Sparta, Ga., March 14.—(Special.) Fifty bales of cotton, valued at $7,500, was destroyed by fire here last night. The fire is thought to have been started by lightning striking a building near the cotton.

The cotton, the property of Dr. R. C. Wiley, of Sparta, was stored on his plantation seven miles west of here. Some of it was of the crop of 1916. No insurance was carried.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR PEPPERS HELD

Columbus, Ga., March 14.—Relatives and friends today are undecided as to the cause of the death of R. L. Peppers, 23 years old, who was shot and killed while riding horseback Tuesday afternoon at Crawford, Ala., a short distance west of Columbus.

There is a possibility that the young man committed suicide, although relatives and friends still cling to the belief that a pistol was discharged in the breast pocket of Peppers' coat, the bullet entering the abdomen, causing instant death.

Funeral services for the deceased were held today at Crawford.

MINISTER DENIES MARRYING COUPLE

Metter Preacher Says
Young Girl Alleged to Have Been Kidnaped
From Savannah Only Witness.

Dublin, Ga., March 14.—(Special.) New light was today thrown on the charges of kidnaping against John F. and W. H. Martin and Blanche Bolter, the trio arrested Monday night by Dublin officers on warrants charging them with kidnaping Reba Meldrim, alleged 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Meldrim, of Savannah. Rev. W. M. Kitchens, of Metter, Ga., gave out a signed statement to a Constitution representative in which he denies having married John F. Martin and the Meldrim girl, as stated by the Martins and the Bolter woman. The statement is as follows: "You have just asked of me a statement for publication as to the marriage of one W. H. Martin to Reba Meldrim, and I am glad to give the following explanation: "During the afternoon of March 7, a party of four people came to my home in Metter. There was a man about 40 to 45 years old, giving his name as W. H. Martin, a woman about 35 to 40 years old, giving her name as Reba Meldrim, a boy and a girl, both of whom I suppose were in their teens. The girl apparently about 14, and the boy some older. "The man handed to me the marriage license on the porch and we then went inside the living room. I inquired as to which of the party were to be married and the man stated that it was he and the woman. The woman indicated that was right. I then inquired as to whether either of them had previously been married or divorced and they stated that they had not. I then proceeded to perform the marriage ceremony, all questions being directed to the man of 40, and the woman, and answers being given by them while they held each other by the right hand. "The girl at the time of the ceremony was not in reach of the couple being married but was some distance from them. My wife and daughter say that she was seated during the ceremony. I could not say whether she was sitting or standing as I was not noticing her, but I do know that she was not near the couple being married. I am not sure that Martin gave his initials as 'W. H.' but the marriage license will show what he claimed as his initials."

The Martins and the Bolter woman were arrested here on warrants from the municipal court of Savannah, which charged them with having kidnaped the young Meldrim girl. The trio were arrested as they prepared to open a show here on the exposition grounds.

When questioned by arresting officers, John F. Martin stated that he and Reba Meldrim were married in Metter by Rev. Kitchens on March 7. He also stated that Reba left home of her own accord and because she was "treated cruelly by her father." Martin also said that the statement of the girl's father as regards her age was wrong and that she was older than alleged.

Martin, did, however, state that he endeavored to conceal his marriage to Reba from the of late, minister by having the Bolter woman stand in front of the young girl and that when the contracting parties clasped hands during the ceremony, this was "hid from the minister by my hat."

The statement of Rev. Kitchens is at variance with that of the trio arrested and adds new complexities which will be threshed out in the Savannah court. The Martin men and the Bolter woman are held here for Savannah officers, and Reba Meldrim probably will be returned to her parents in Savannah.

Montgomery, Ala., March 13.—Alabama school children are being taught the art of liquor distilling in the public schools, in that a full illustration of a distilling plant appears in the health book that is now in use, was the ground of objection brought today before the state educational board by representatives of the Anti-Saloon league of the state.

The volume was objected to on the ground that it is out of date with present-day conditions and should be supplemented by a more modern volume.

Governor Brandon and State Superintendent of Education John W. Abernethy will investigate the prices of the textbooks used in Alabama as compared with the prices of the same books in use in other states before the existing contract is renewed, it is said by members of the committee.

CREDIT MEETING SPEAKERS NAMED

Governor Parker, of Louisiana, Ex-Senator Hoke Smith and Dr. M. Ashby Jones Already on List.

Announcement was made Wednesday at a meeting of the executive committee of the convention board of the Atlanta Association of Credit Men that Governor Parker, of Louisiana, ex-Senator Hoke Smith, and Dr. Ashby Jones, had been secured as speakers for the convention of the national association to be held in Atlanta June 12 to 15. Other speakers will be announced in the near future. It was stated by Ferbert E. Choate, chairman of the convention board, and president of both national and local bodies.

Badges, featuring a Georgia watermelon, were ordered Wednesday by J. B. Wittingham, chairman of the badges committee, and it was stated that 2,000 would be mailed out to delegates; 500 sleeve bands, attractively decorated in gold and blue, with the emblem of the national association were also ordered to be worn by members of the Atlanta association. E. S. Papp, chairman of the reception committee, stated that an invitation had been received from Chattanooga for his committee to come to that city this Sunday before the convention to meet northern delegates, escort them to various places of interest, and accompany them on to Atlanta. Bolling Jones, chairman of the finance committee, stated that the convention fund was expected to be completed within the next 10 days.

Plans are under way for the annual

HELP OF CITIZENS ASKED BY SUTTON IN SCHOOL CENSUS

In a letter to the public issued by Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of public schools, Wednesday, he stated that the aid of women's clubs, civic, trade, and business organizations and churches in Atlanta, will be needed to insure a complete and accurate census of the children in Atlanta, of school age. He stated further that every boy or girl attending either public or private school from 6 to 18 years of age, should be listed in the census.

Each child who is not included in the census will deprive the public school system of more than $4. Mr. Sutton states emphatically that no effort will be made to force children who have reached their fourteenth birthday to enter school.

While there are more than 50,000 children in Atlanta of school age, only approximately 31,000 are being paid for, and a complete census will remedy this defect, the letter stated.

Weevil and Diseases Cost Nearly Billion in 13 Years

Department of Agriculture Completes Exhaustive Survey of Ravages on Country's Crops.

Constitution Bureau, Raleigh, N.C.

Washington, March 14.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—The United States department of agriculture has just completed an exhaustive survey of crop conditions of the country in 1909 to 1921 averaged $8,450,000 in value of crops lost to weevils, diseases, and other pests.

The survey of the department is said to be the most exhaustive of agricultural conditions ever made in this country, and it is estimated that the value of crops lost to weevils, diseases, and other pests in 13 years was $8,450,000,000, including seed.

During the same period prevented production in eleven of the country's important crops aggregated a total average value of $4,230,000,000 yearly, cotton ranking second on the list. It was shown what the corn crop, which is also peculiar to the south, is the chief sufferer, its annual average prevented production being 1,568,879,000 bushels, which at the average December 1 price, makes its value $1,250,282,000. Third in order is wheat, with an annual average damage of 448,762,000 bushels, valued at $399,372,000.

In addition to the causes named for the failure of potential production in the cotton crop, animal pests account for the damage to other crops, it was declared.

The department in an accompanying statement said if farmers could harvest a potential production they could greatly reduce the acreage now devoted to these eleven crops. The others given, together with the average prevented production and estimated value, follow:

Other Losses.

Oats, 596,433,000 bushels, and value $290,277,000; barley, 108,063,000 bushels, valued at $81,318,000; flax seed, 11,777,000 bushels, valued at $26,494,000; rice, 11,267,000 bushels, valued at $14,919,000; potatoes, 210,121,000 bushels, valued at $201,849,000; apples, 163,150,000 bushels, valued at $182,946,000; hay, $4,025,000.

Beavers Asserts He Must Enforce Anti-Skating Law

Suggests Those Opposing It Take Matter Up With City Council.

"The police chief's duties are to enforce the laws and it is not within his province to amend or warp them to suit any particular need or fancy," said Chief James L. Beavers, Wednesday with reference to recent agitation in favor of allowing children to skate on the sidewalks and streets.

"Section 2664, of the city code, provides that 'No person shall use roller skates for the purpose of skating on any streets or sidewalks of said city of Atlanta,' and if that doesn't mean what it says, what does it mean?" Chief Beavers asked.

Superintendent Willis A. Sutton, of the Atlanta schools, in a letter to Chief Beavers, dated March 13, championed the cause of Atlanta's youth, pleading that skating is a beneficial exercise; that inadequate playgrounds and parks are provided by the city, and that, under proper regulation, the children should be encouraged in skating.

Chief Beavers says that he believes the city government should provide better playground facilities for the enjoyment of this exercise, expressing his belief that skating on the sidewalks or in the streets is dangerous, both for the children and for others. He cited several serious injuries and one death which resulted from the use of roller skates upon the streets and sidewalks.

"However," said the chief, "even if I was in favor of allowing children to use the sidewalks and streets for skating, my sworn duty is to enforce the law, and the law says they can't do this. Therefore, it is the law, not I, that forbids this practice," he continued.

Chief Beavers stated that if Superintendent Sutton and others would bring proper influence to bear upon city council, they could have the law changed if it is as bad a one as they believe.

DR. THOMAS HINMAN GIVEN LOVING CUP BY DIXIE DENTISTS

Dr. Thomas P. Hinman was presented with a handsome loving cup by 200 members of the Fifth District Dental society, as a token of appreciation for his untiring devotion to the advancement of dentistry and the high esteem of the members of the society at the close Wednesday afternoon of the annual mid-winter clinic, which has been in session at the Ansley for the past three days.

He is graduated from the Southern Medical college, of Atlanta, in 1891, and since that time has become a universally recognized authority on oral surgery and other branches of dentistry.

Gov. Parker Refuses To Name Klansmen To Court of Appeals

Baton Rouge, La., March 14.—Delegations between the appointment of district Judge Robert Roberts, of Minden and District Judge J. E. Reynolds, of Arcadia, to the vacancy on the Louisiana court of appeals were announced today by Governor John M. Parker they would not be considered as he believed they were members of the Ku Klux Klan.

The governor said the delegation he had made the public statement he would not appoint to office a member of the Klan and this especially applied to judges.

"A lawyer knows the majesty of the law," said the governor, "and a judge on the bench must enforce it. I certainly will not name a man who has taken the Klan oath, as judge to enforce the laws of the state."

The governor was said to have produced the membership list of the Minden Klan and read the name of Judge Roberts as a Klansman. Governor Parker then asked Mr. Reynolds if he had joined the Shreveport Klan and it was said he admitted he had.

WIDENING OF FAIRLEE STREET BEGINS SOON

Will Conform With Width of New Viaduct at North Entrance.

Actual work on widening of Fairlee street between Marietta and the railroad tracks will be started April 1 if plans approved Wednesday by the bond commission are accepted by city council at its session Monday afternoon.

Fairlee street at this point will be widened so as to conform with the width of the Spring street viaduct at the north entrance. It is expected that the work of widening this thoroughfare will require about six months as the contract stipulates that the city is to assume obligations of moving the warehouse of the Beck & Gregg Hardware company and erect a concrete structure in the rear of the hardware store to correspond with the remainder of the building.

In addition to approving the plans for the street widening, the bond commission approved new contracts for construction of sewers in the city, the total amount to be expended approximating $135,000. This money will be obtained from the sale of bonds for improving the sewerage system of the city and from general exchequer funds.

One lot, 350 bushels, was in possession of the Fidelity Fruit and Product company, and the other lot, 150 bushels, was in a railroad car. Federal authorities declared the fruit was dry and not fit for use as food. It was seized on papers taken out by District Attorney Clint W. Hager.

SUICIDE OF CRAMER LAID TO CRITICISM

Former Counsel for Vets' Bureau Was Subject of Several Attacks.

Washington, March 14.—The suicide today of Charles F. Cramer, who resigned as general counsel of the veterans' bureau at the height of congressional attacks on that organization, was attributed tonight by his associates to worry over criticism aimed at him, accentuated by the ill health of his father and by financial reverses.

William Wolf Smith, who succeeded Mr. Cramer, said his inquiry into the affairs of the legal division of the bureau had thus far disclosed "nothing to Mr. Cramer's discredit."

Investigation by the police revealed no motive for the suicide, but they said they had learned that Mr. Cramer had been greatly depressed since severing his connection with the veterans' organization, which occurred just prior to the resignation of Director Forbes a few weeks ago.

Mr. Cramer was alone at the time of the tragedy, except for a maid and a chauffeur. Last night he escorted his wife to the midnight train for New York, where she went to visit his father, who is 82 years old, and who is said to be critically ill. Returning to his home, Mr. Cramer told the maid to awaken him at 8 o'clock this morning, but when she went to call him, she found his bed had not been slept in. The door to a bathroom was found locked. It was broken down and his body was found stretched on the floor. A bullet had passed through his head. The police believe that he shot himself early today.

Attacked by Legion. The house in which the act was committed was purchased by Mr. Cramer from President and Mrs. Harding, it having been occupied by them while Mr. Harding was senator. It was recalled at the veterans' bureau that after a meeting of the American legion at Indianapolis last fall, at which he was bitterly assailed, Mr. Cramer issued a statement saying he had given whole hearted and patriotic service to the bureau, and laid all the facts before his chief and was willing to abide by the latter's decision as to whether he should remain.

Almost immediately his resignation was accepted and within a few days Director Forbes was on his way to Europe, leaving his own resignation in the hands of President Harding.

Since then the senate has appointed a committee to investigate the affairs of the bureau and John F. O'Ryan, of New York, who commanded the twenty-seventh division in France has been selected as special counsel.

Tried to Join Army.

Mr. Cramer was 45 years old. He left no children. When the United States entered the war he came to Washington and tried to obtain a commission in the army, but because of a crippled arm and bad eyesight, he was rejected. Later he was appointed representative of foreign petroleum interests here, which were supplying the allies with material for the manufacture of explosives.

Prior to the war, Mr. Cramer was general counsel for various western oil companies in San Francisco. He was graduated from New York university in the class of 1899.

G. O. P. Officials See Favorable Tariff Results

Declare Imports Continue to Grow, Despite High Duties of New Legislation.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER, United News Staff Correspondent. Washington, March 14.—After having watched the operation of the Fordney-McCumber tariff act for six months, administration officials regard the results as highly favorable. Imports continue to grow in volume despite the high duties. Predictions that European countries would be unable to market their goods here in face of the high tariff wall and that they would retaliate by boycotting American goods appear to be erroneous thus far.

Noting these developments, republicans have already begun a campaign to sell the new tariff law to the country. From President Harding down, administration officials have taken occasion recently to comment on the healthy industrial situation under the new tariff regime. Using data furnished by the treasury and commerce departments, Representative Addison T. Smith, of Idaho, who voted for the Fordney-McCumber bill, has compiled an account of the operation of the new tariff act. This is to be given broad circulation as a campaign document as an answer to the assaults of democratic opponents who predicted that its high protective rates would be injurious. It is the most comprehensive survey of the operation of the new tariff that has been made in republican quarters and, for that reason, a summary of the more important phases is herewith given.

To Go Over 3 Billions. On the basis of figures now available, estimated imports for the first year under the Fordney-McCumber act will reach $3,600,000,000, as against $5,238,000,000 in 1920, the last year in which the Underwood act operated intact. Revenue from import duties are expected to total $520,000,000 for the first year of the protective tariff. They were $326,000,000 in 1920.

The Fordney act became effective September 21, 1922, and from that time until the end of January, export trade increased 20 per cent above that of the corresponding period of the previous year.

Total exports from October to January last were one and one-half billion dollars; during the same period in 1912-13 when the Underwood law became effective, they were slightly more than one billion dollars, and during those months in the final year of that law's operation, they were one and a quarter billion. These figures, the republicans assert, answer the argument that Europe would stop buying from the United States in retaliation for the protective duties of the new law.

Government figures on imports under the new law are being compiled slowly. During last October, the first complete month under the republican act, imports were $285,000,000—an increase of $97,000,000 above those of the previous October. Representative Smith gives these increases for some of the leading countries.

Table of Increases.	1921.	1922.
U. Kingdom.....	$10,000,000	$47,000,000
France.....	10,000,000	17,000,000
Germany.....	7,000,000	13,000,000
Canada.....	29,000,000	47,000,000
Cuba.....	10,000,000	17,000,000
Japan.....	17,000,000	47,000,000

Such figures, it is insisted, show that the tariff rates are not prohibitive, averaging the first month's customs receipts on all dutiable imports. Representative Smith found that the rate on such imports was slightly under 45 per cent, or spread over all commodities, both dutiable and free, the ad valorem average was 16 per cent of 60 items which comprise all except 15 per cent of the imports, practically half came in duty-free.

November figures obtained by Smith from the department of commerce checked fairly close with those of the preceding months.

Farm Imports Fall.

"Should the trade maintain this pace throughout the first full year operation of the new law, it should record $4,300,000,000 in exports and $3,600,000,000 in imports, or a favorable balance for the first year of $700,000,000," Smith said. However, treasury department estimates place the probable exports at $4,500,000,000 and imports $3,250,000,000 leaving a favorable balance of $1,250,000,000.

Referring briefly to the emergency tariff act of May, 1921, designed to give quick protection to farmers who were suffering from severe depression, Smith said the imports of agricultural products fell even though retail figures dropped slightly.

Film Beauty Secrets

BY GRACE IRENE CASTLE.

She Tells the Secrets of its Cultivation.

GRACE IRENE CASTLE.

Of all the photographs that are to recognize those of Irene Castle, published every year in newspapers, however soft may be the focus of the camera or indistinct the reproduction, it is always possible to find one of these men. It is said

Other beautiful women try to imitate her poses, but the result is never the same. You always know an Irene Castle photograph from the photograph of someone who is trying to look like her.

It is not her face you recognize. The photograph may be so dim you can't see the face at all. It is the quality that made Irene Castle famous for her dancing—her remarkable gracefulness. She has a way of standing carelessly before the camera, placing her hands in position and producing an effect—the rest of us cannot attain after hours of striving.

But the reason we cannot attain it is that we strive only when we are getting our photograph taken or when we happen to think of it. Irene Castle says that grace is something that must be carefully cultivated for a very long time before even the least satisfactory results are obtained.

Part of the secret of Irene Castle's gracefulness is, of course, her figure. She has the long slender lines that make moving gracefully fairly easy. But many women with long slender figures spoil the effect with clothes of the wrong kind and many women who are not long and slender can go a long way towards producing that effect. Irene Castle knows how to accentuate the slender graceful lines of her figure with the right clothes. When fashion decrees that waistslines shall be low, Irene Castle finds among the various lumpy models some dress that does not produce the usual stunted effect of the low waistline, or she goes on wearing her waist high. Her sleeves emphasize the length of her arms, her hats make her even more tall and slender, even though the fashions that nine women out of ten are wearing produce entirely the opposite effect.

But grace is even more than an affair of clothes. Irene Castle's recipe for attaining grace is, of course, to study dancing under a competent teacher or, if that is possible, to watch the various lumpy models and try to perfect them till gracefulness becomes not an art but a habit. $100,000-a-Year Men

(From The Dayton News.) Judging by the life stories of some of our $100,000-a-year men the easiest formula for getting oneself into such an admirable position is to start at the bottom and keep on plugging until the boss discovers that you are really worth $100,000 and insists upon your accepting such a stipend. Of course, it is not necessary to employ much force in this connection—at least with most people—and so the boss generally has an easy time of it after he makes up his mind that you are worth this sum. George H. Jones, a Standard Oil company official, is one of these men. It is said that the "Standard Oil company" couldn't get along without him. He began life sorting rags, which kind of a job, of course, does not always lead to a $100,000-a-year job. He knew drudgery and hard work but he had the nerve to stick to the little things. A. C. Bedford, who is chairman of the board of directors of the Standard Oil company of New York, began his march to a fortune in annual salary as a stock boy in a wholesale dry goods concern. Walter C. Teagle, president of the S. O. of New Jersey, was once a cowboy on the western plains. It seems history scatters a few such characters, alone its pages that every boy may take courage and that none need despair.

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE

THE mother has her choice of many remedies for her baby's minor ills, but she should be careful which remedy she selects lest she do the child harm. What might be safe for herself may do injury to an infant. You will find that if the little one cries and doesn't want to play that its bowels are constipated. First look carefully at the diet and of the child one-half teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. You will then see results in a few hours. You will not have to force it on babies or children; they actually ask for it, it is so pleasant-tasting and free from gripping.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with agreeable aromatics. The ingredients are stated on the package. It is a mild, gentle vegetable laxative that everyone finds effective and pleasant. It is better for you and yours than purgatives, coal-tar drugs, or salt waters and powders, which may concentrate the blood and dry up the skin; or mercurial calomel, which may salivate and loosen the teeth.

Use a safe laxative like Syrup Pepsin, and especially for the children, for invalids, growing girls, nursing mothers, elderly people, and persons recently operated upon who need bowel action with the least strain. Mrs. Lillian Brenington of Woodruff, S. C., always gives her children Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and Mrs. A. E. Blonidin of Muskegon, Mich., will not have any other laxative in her home. Your druggist will supply you, and it only costs a cent a dose. Try it in constipation, colic, biliousness, flatulency, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds.

Bishop W. F. McMurry, widely known Methodist divine and former secretary of church extension for southern Methodism, will deliver two powerful sermons at Wesley Memorial church Sunday morning and night.

Bishop McMurry is well-known to Atlanta churchgoers, having delivered sermons and addresses here on numerous occasions. He is one of the greatest religious drawing cards ever presented in Atlanta, and a capacity attendance is anticipated for the Sunday sermons.

As secretary of church extension, which position he held for a number of years, Bishop McMurry has a remarkable record for raising extension funds and establishing churches in waste places.

PICKARD ARRIVES TODAY TO CONFER WITH COTTON MEN

To confer with cotton mill executives and others interested in the European textile situation, Edward T. Pickard, chief of the textile division of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, of the United States department of commerce, will arrive in Atlanta today.

The trip is designed to acquaint officials of the textile industry with conditions abroad. He will be available during the day for private conference at the office of B. C. Getzinger, in charge of the bureau's Atlanta office in the Chamber of Commerce building. Mr. Getzinger has invited those interested in consulting Mr. Pickard to phone his office for an appointment.

A meeting with local members of the Georgia Cotton Manufacturing association is being arranged.

In the fall of 1922 Mr. Pickard was appointed by Secretary Hoover to investigate the economic and market conditions relating to the textile industry in Great Britain, France, Germany, Holland, Belgium, Switzerland, Italy, Austria and Poland.

POLICE RECOVER STOLEN NARCOTICS VALUED AT $1,000

Morphine worth $1,000, a part of the supply valued at $25,000, stolen recently from the McRoberts Drug company, of 37 Luckie street, was located in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Audry, at 50 Garnett street, Wednesday afternoon by Captain T. O. Sturdivant and Officer Brown. This brings the total amount recovered up to $18,000.

Mrs. Audry was the only one at home at the time of the discovery. The morphine was found in a tin box hidden in the chimney. She was arrested and later gave information that led to the arrest of her husband.

Both she and her husband are addicts, according to the police. They are being held on a charge of suspicion. Attorneys H. A. Allen and I. S. Hall have been engaged as counsel for the defense.

VISIT TO HARDING SOCIAL IN NATURE, STATES HARDWICK

Governor Hardwick's contemplated visit with President Harding in Florida is entirely "social" in its nature and by no means a "conference," he said Wednesday. He pointed out that the president and Mrs. Harding are in Florida seeking rest, and said that he and Mrs. Hardwick were going there for the same purpose.

The governor expects to leave Florida the latter part of March for a trip to New York and Washington, and to be back in his office at the state capitol about April 1.

Aged Woman Pleads With Judge to Save Grandson From Girl

The plea of an aged grandmother to save her 16-year-old grandson, Horace Crumley, of 18 Strong street, from the designing clutches of pretty Miss Sarah Middlebrooks, 21, of 26 Kennedy street, was weighed against the plea of the girl's father, that his daughters be spared the disgrace of a prison sentence, Wednesday afternoon by Judge Johnson.

Sarah, with her sister, Lillian, 16, were arrested Tuesday evening on complaints from the neighbors, and charges of disorderly conduct docketed against them. In the trial it was brought out that Crumley was the only means of support of his grandmother, and that he had been spending his earnings with the girls. Another boy, Roy Barrett, 16, of Strong street, was also haled into court with the two girls.

Judge Johnson warned the youths against spending their earnings in riotous living, and placed the girls on probation. He explained to the girls that the case was not closed, and that a probation officer would visit their home once a week to ascertain if they heeded his admonition.

The father of the girls stated that he had requested them not to allow any callers at his home unless he was present. The girls, he stated had paid no attention to his request.

Artillery Unit Thrown Into Panic By Pistol Duel

Sergeant and Private "Plug" at Each Other Until Ammunition Exhausted.

Savannah, Ga., March 14.—(Special.)—Forty artillery guardsmen were thrown into a panic at the armory where Battery F was gathered for drill when First Sergeant J. A. Bailey and Private Pat Goggan engaged in a pistol duel in which they plugged at each other till a round of ammunition had been exhausted. The armory was nearly cleared, save for a bunch of officers, including Brigadier-General R. J. Travis.

It required an hour of argument after the smoke had cleared to convince the scattered ones that the "duel" was a stage affair to test the nerve of the artillerymen.

Lending a more realistic effect to the incident was the fact that a loaded pistol had been accidentally discharged in the armory earlier in the evening.

Western Europe buys about 90 per cent of all the surplus agricultural products of the world.

SOLDIER IS KILLED IN FIRING PRACTICE

Trench Mortar Explodes at Fort Benning, Fatally Injuring Private Arnold Kilgore.

Columbus, Ga., March 14.—Private Arnold A. Kilgore, 19 years old, is dead today following fatal injuries received during a firing demonstration at Fort Benning Tuesday. The injuries were suffered when a Stokes mortar exploded.

The right leg of the young soldier was shot off as well as his left thumb. The victim also suffered internal injuries when the blast occurred in the trench area at the army post.

There were several other members of the howitzer company, to which Private Kilgore belonged, near the scene of explosion, but none of them were injured.

No cause for the explosion could be assigned today at infantry school headquarters, but it was pointed out that several things could have caused the blast. It might have been either a defect in the gun or the shell, according to officers of the command. While a board of inquiry will be appointed to make an investigation into the accident, it is probable that the cause never will be determined.

The young soldier was operated on at the post hospital immediately after suffering the injuries which proved to be fatal at 9:15 o'clock last night, and every effort made to save his life.

The body is being held here pending advices from Ethel Joyce Morton, of Rossville, Ga., sister of the deceased.

Pay More Attention To School Beginners, Urges Mrs. Felton

Cartersville, Ga., March 14.—Too little attention is being given the beginners in the public schools, Mrs. W. H. Felton believes, according to her answer to a questionnaire sent out by Dr. M. M. Parks, state school superintendent.

Mrs. Felton advocates a test of the child on "plain spelling, plain reading and simple arithmetic" before advancing it to the higher grades. "Start the structure right, then you can build on it safely," she declares.

Her answer to the questionnaire follows: "Being over-age and not personally familiar with modern school methods, I shall only discuss what I know about. There is too little attention given the children who are just beginning to get an education. The utmost care and attention should be given at the starting place, then the pupil can get along to the higher grades successfully."

"No child should be advanced to higher grades until it can be tested on plain spelling, plain reading and simple arithmetic. In my early days, we were made to spell in classes, no matter how old we were or how advanced in other studies. We had blackboard exercises in plain writing, also simple arithmetic. How I thank my dear old teachers for these careful basic foundations. They have been invaluable to me. Start the structure right, then you can build on it safely."

Mrs. Felton's ideas on education come as an answer to one of a number of questionnaires which have been sent to a large number of prominent people in the state.

ARREST NEGRO JANITOR Charge John Taylor, Negro, With Stealing Ring.

Charged with the theft of a diamond ring, valued at more than $500, John Taylor, negro janitor at an apartment at 193 Summit avenue, was jailed Wednesday afternoon by Policemen Stribling and Hughes.

The ring belonged to Mrs. W. H. Turner, and was stolen from her apartment.

Just From Georgia
BY FRANK L. STANTON.

Life's Fading
Light.
Dear heart, the light is dying:
Let us go,
And dream of rest
There, in the Life for a little space was sweet to know.
But now the light is fading—
Let us go!

We have known
Love's morning, and the afterglow
Falls now where we shall neither reap nor sow.
We have loved each other—for God
willed it so:
Dear heart, the light is fading—
Let us go!

The Happiness Train.
Here's the train for Happiness—
Summer-time, or snow—
Leave your bundles of distress—
Hurry up!—She's going!

The "Kitchen-Hold."
The Houston Post has a cooking school, of which that famous corned beef and cabbage lover, George Bailey, says to the women-folk:
"It is there you may get a clutch on that nomadic husband of yours.
When he rambles around, he is merely looking for something to eat. The Lewis strangle-hold in wrestling was never such a clutch as the kitchen-hold a wife gets on her husband's affections. The frying-pan wallop, the griddle half Nelson, the coffee-pot squeeze, the hot biscuit scissor, and the corned-beef and cabbage drag will enable you to have him singing 'Home Sweet Home' on the front porch every evening at sunset. We are here to speed up the glorious cause, and may the Lord help you!"

Life Is Best.
Storm wind blowing east and west—
We forgive it!
Bloom or blizzard, life is best;
Let us live it!

Though the storm the spirit tries,
Though the day no song inspires,
Warm the heart at all life's fires:
Life is best.

The Southern Telephone News.
The March number of The Southern Telephone News is one of the best that has been issued from its Atlanta office. The cover design is in colors
—a most attractive view of mountain scenery, showing Lula Falls, near Chattanooga. The number contains valuable contributed articles of local interest, and other features, including an illustrated poem by D. MacL.
Therrell, "Across the Hills of Haber-sham," and the typography of the magazine is excellent.

The Welcome One.
Sweet Spring says: "I'm here again.
But brief will be my stay;
Summer, at a garden-gate,
Is calling me away."

"For a little while I linger
With flowers, and hills, and plains,
But I know I'll not forget me—
The lovers in the lanes."

"Nother Spring Picture."
(From The Pleasant Hill Times.)
A tin Lizzie east bound at an easy gait, with two 1,500-pound-Missouri saddles, rope led, trotting contentedly along behind, blue smoke from the puffing exhaust wreathing up about their noses. One would have played havoc with a span of mules and a
Lizzie ten or twelve years ago.

When They Come.
Sing a song of good times,
And when they come along
Perhaps they'll pat us on the back
With—"Bully for the song!"

The Paying Ad.
The Linn Budget gives this, as a specimen of successful advertising:
"One of our patrons advertised for a lost crank to his car. From that ad three cranks have been sent, and the advertiser is now in a quandary about the matter. The man who inserted the ad. One whooper-jawed, wooden-headed crank was even left at this office and nobody has claimed it."

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE
BY O. O. MINTYRE

New York, March 14.—It seems to me no other place in New York offers the close-knit camaraderie of the barber shop. It is one place where the dignity loses its zip. Few men can scrub with suspenders showing and a towel tucked in their necks.
The haughty opera impresario, as he is scratched, rinsed and wrung, appears no more majestic than Pezoo, the bowlegged bootblack. The man whose name trembles the money marks himself being led by the nape of the neck to a ducking stool and comes back dripping and gasping and perhaps smelling of violets.

I once saw a mighty Romeo of the stage with a towel wrapped around his head and his face daubed with grayish mud. He did not even try to resent the flippant cynicism of the manicure girl. The romantic aura had vanished.

And one of the most pathetic sights
I ever saw was when a fire-fighting army general whispered an order and turned and saw a turkey comb when the barber shouted to his helper, "Bring me the lilac mustache paste."

Then there was another time when a pulpy old fellow was told that a young lady friend had sent him a shaving cup. He asked to see it and the barber held it up for him and all the rest to behold. It was lettered with "To My Sweet Old Duddykins."

Those who have watched the progressive changes in barber shops here will find the old corner shop with red plush chairs, copies of the Police Gazette and the banjoist or accordionist.

One shop on Madison avenue has barbering to the tune of a five-piece orchestra. It is all grand and elegant, but has a terrifying prospect.

Think of what might happen should a barber be shaving in tune to the slip horn and all of a sudden the slip hornist struck a bad note.

The removal of policemen from cafes and the permission now given the cafe owners for patrons to dance until 2 o'clock has sent a new wave of optimism up and down Broadway, twelve new cafes and supper clubs have been opened since the order was issued a few weeks ago. Scouts are searching for cabaret performers. Most of them for the past three years have been without employment and had sought other jobs. The French cafes, where there is no music, are again serving the cocktails and champagne openly. Broadway believes that the old order is being restored, but some who are putting their ears to the rail hear a different story. They say that Broadway is merely being given enough rope to hang itself. And point to the doors that are locked and barred at old Reisenweber's in Columbus Circle.

Every day the ladies' earrings are growing longer and longer. Those with evening gowns are now dropping far below the shoulders, and one access has a pair that are eleven inches long.

One of the best plays of the season on Broadway is shortly to close.
The leading part is taken by a fellow whose reputation is that of a famous Broadway rake. In the play he has a sympathetic and spiritual part. His performance has been praised by the critics, but his public knows his past and the acting fails to register with them.

MELLON ATTACKED AS LEGION ENEMY

organization to submit to Washington a constructive program for handling the immigration problem, and aided in passage of the first statute limiting immigration.

Commander Owsley said that Secretary Andrew Mellon, of the treasury, had declared in favor of opening the door to immigration, and that he was a natural enemy of the American people.

Here, he declared, Secretary Mellon spoke without consulting President Harding on the question, for the president had declared that in the bituminous coal fields alone, America already had a surplus of 200,000 laborers, and called attention to the statement from Secretary Davis, of the labor department, that during last year 70 to 100,000 illegals entered America from foreign shores.

"What shall we do with the foreigners?" asked the speaker, "bring them here to make industrial slaves of them, or shall we bring them here and make American citizens? The American Legion is in favor of helping them to become American citizens—or of sending them back home where they belong."

Wants Sufficient Force.

Going further into detail regarding preparedness, Colonel Owsley declared that America would never allow itself to become militarized, but that the legion stood for a sufficient army and navy to serve the purpose for which it was needed, preserve order at home and furnish protection of American rights.

He declared that the country needed a splendid citizen soldiery in the national guard, and that the reserves and citizen military training camps be given special attention and kept in shape to perform the service for which intended.

Commenting upon the disarmament conference, he called attention to the fact that the "four power pact" contained no mention of limitation for cruisers, submarines, or aircraft, and stressed the need of a merchant marine that could be of great use in the event of war.

"Touching on the matter of war contracts, Colonel Owsley declared that out of 17,000 war contracts that had been examined, $47,000,000 had been returned to the treasury from persons who had no right to the money secured through these contracts, and declared that the legion would continue to suggest investigations of war contracts until the other 150,000 such contracts had been examined.

Mentioning the actions of administration officials during the war, he cited the example of sugar, millions of pounds of which were sold immediately upon signing of the armistice to certain individuals at eight cents short time later the same sugar, which had not been moved from the warehouses, was bought back by the government for 25 cents per pound.

He mentioned the report of General Pershing which stated that not one bombing plane, scouting plane or fighting plane ever reached the front in Europe that was of American manufacture, and called attention to the enormous sums paid to manufacturers to provide this equipment which was never delivered.

"Are Still Unpunished."

These persons, he declared, increased their wealth during the war by hundreds of millions, and are still unpunished and in possession of this ill-gotten wealth—while he knew of one instance where an American private soldier drew a sentence of one year in a federal penitentiary because he stole one can of beans.

The legion will not cease its efforts until these big money makers are brought into the courts, he declared, and where convictions may be had, he declared he wanted to see those guilty put in the penitentiary.

Closing his address at the tabernacle, Colonel Owsley paid high tribute to American women. He declared that he was a firm believer in the sentiment that every good deed accomplished by men originated in the inspiration of a good woman.

Colonel Owsley, Joseph Sparks, national chairman of the rehabilitation commission, and Eric Cooke, national vice commander, will leave for Montgomery Thursday to spend three days in Alabama.

Accompanying Colonel Owsley to Atlanta was Major M. C. Banes, commanding officer of United States Veterans hospital No. 62, of Augusta, and Rodger S. Chen, state commander, of Augusta.

Stresses Americanism.

Americanism, more especially that interpretation of it which demands that America stand by her own, those who fought and suffered for her in time of war, was the theme of the eloquent leader of the "one all American organization," as he flung far the battle cry of his potent army while the Atlanta public greeted the chairman from Texas in the spirit usually manifested toward commanding warriors.

"America Legion day" was a busy day for the "Texas country boy." At every turn, the "smiling, fighting preacher of patriotism" spoke fiery words to make indelible the understanding and appreciation of the mission and strength of the American Legion.

Speaking for his organization, Colonel Owsley frankly and emphatically outlined the objectives of his men, and when occasion arose, without hesitation denounced those who would interfere with the legion's program to preserve America for Americans and perpetuate Americanism to be handed down as a heritage to future generations of Americans.

Starting with a personal interview, Colonel Owsley boldly attacked the policies of President Harding and predicted that even the veto of this executive would not again result in delaying favorable legislation to provide adjusted compensation for men who made financial sacrifices during the war while rendering personal service to America.

Receives City Early.

Colonel Owsley arrived in Atlanta early Wednesday morning. Asa W. Candler, Major A. L. Pendleton and a number of other prominent legionnaires greeted the national commander and escorted him to the Georgian Terrace. Here breakfast was served.

Before making a public appearance, Colonel Owsley granted an interview to newspaper men. In this he briefly outlined the policies of the legion and

The one-legged veteran in left of picture, shaking hands with Colonel Owsley, is George F. Whitehead, a Canadian veteran of the late war, who started his service in 1917, and lost one leg. In the rolling chair between Colonel Owsley and the Canadian veteran is Warner Bailey. Lower: Colonel Owsley greeting little Miss Lamar (Cootie) Folsom Stockbridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Basil Stockbridge. touched specifically on the problem of the disabled veterans and the present facilities for taking care of them.

At 11:30 o'clock, Commander Owsley led a parade from the Terminal station through the center of Atlanta. Stores along the way were displaying decorations in his honor, and the legion band of post No. 1 led the parade. Enormous crowds witnessed the parade and joined in the enthusiasm of greeting the legion leader.

Following the parade, Colonel Owsley was guest of honor at a luncheon at the Kimball house. Mayor Walter A. Sims was called upon to introduce the commander to the legion, and visitors by Asa W. Candler, chairman of the reception committee.

Mayor Sims called attention to the room of Colonel Owsley and advanced the opinion that never had Atlanta greeted a visitor whose worth and position merited greater honor. An ovation greeted the Texas as he rose to respond to the introduction.

Here a second opportunity of the day was grasped by Commander Owsley, and in a short address he declared that the voice of Georgia in Atlanta was directed to the legion, urging it to advance to the tasks set for it.

Shows Legion's Strength.

He mentioned that Georgia was the 28th state department of the legion he had visited since he had been elected, and declared that the American Legion was not merely an organization with representation and strength in more than 12,000 cities and towns in America, but extended its power into more than 20 foreign countries.

Commenting upon the progress of the legion in Georgia, Commander Owsley declared that if this movement wished to go to the next national convention and sweep everything before it the same as it did at the one in New Orleans, it only had to get busy and work harder than it did last year in order to win its honors.

He declared that had it not been for the Georgia delegation in New Orleans, he believed another legionnaire would have been occupying his position now, and expressed thanks for the honor bestowed on him and the confidence manifested at this convention.

Praises Legion Band.

He complimented the legion band of post No. 1, and expressed a hope that special recognition would be made for this organization at the convention this year in San Francisco.

Terming the American Legion the "greatest force for good of this country in existence," Commander Owsley called attention to its broadness, being composed of men of different political views, different religions, different races, but all standing for the same principles, and all dedicated to serving America in time of peace with the same fervor as in time of war.

He declared that the battles and problems of peace were at least as great as the dangers and battles of war, and those who would destroy American institutions and ideals are never idle.

Calling attention to the action of the United States shipping board in aiding German opera singers to enter this country, Colonel Owsley declared that this was an instance of the activities of foreigners in entering America to spread the propaganda of other nations.

He declared that the shipping board accepted a note for $15,000 in payment of passage of the band of singers, and that the first night's receipts after reaching New York netted $17,000 to be paid on the note.

Wants Thorough Probe.

Mentioning the veterans' bureau, which was given special attention in the interview granted earlier, Commander Owsley again expressed his views, this time to hundreds of legionnaires and visitors.

"The American Legion stands for a thorough investigation and reorganization of the veterans' bureau from top to bottom," declared the speaker. "I think it should begin with President Harding."

"President Harding should be asked whether he intends for the veterans' bureau to be an institution separate and apart in itself, or whether he intends for it to be bundled along with other bureaus and lost."

"The general public seems to think that the problem of the veterans' bureau is settled, which is wrong. Only in the closing moments of the congress just adjourned were we able to get attention to the Sweet bill, a measure which was necessary in order to provide proper treatment for 10,000 disabled men who were being neglected."

"The veterans' bureau of the fifth district is coming along fine. I am glad to say, and I am also proud to say that the trouble with the veterans' bureau is not with the field forces, but with Washington."

Claimed Handicapped.

"Colonel Forbes, the retiring director, declared that he had been handicapped in his administration of the bureau because of too much politics. Entirely too many political appointments have been made, without due regard to ability and fitness of appointments.

"Any one congressman, senator, president or any one else, who will pay his political debts by appointing an incompetent to a position in the veterans' bureau is an infamous scoundrel."

"We are pledged to stand by our veterans. The veterans' bureau has not achieved its object yet, but recently Secretary Mellon, of the treasury department, announced that he had changed his views relative to the veterans' bureau."

"Secretary Mellon has had too many ideas, too many fads about the veterans' bureau. The trouble is he did not have a boy of his own who served during the war—too many men in high office today are men who furnished no sons to fight America's battles."

"General Frank Hines, new director of the veterans' bureau, was not my choice or the choice of the American Legion. We have adopted a policy of watchful and hopeful waiting, hoping that he proves to be the right man. The legion will co-operate with him to the fullest extent in providing for wounded American soldiers."

"I am opposed to putting wounded soldiers in the home for old soldiers. There has been a tendency to cut down on the wrong things in reducing cost of government. Human life must be held sacred, and the rehabilitation of wounded soldiers even at a great cost is preferable to saving the United States treasury a few dollars."

Visit to Hospital.

A visit to United States Veterans' Hospital No. 48 was another occasion for carrying the legion message home. Ralph Dickinson, Bob Stevens and Robert M. Cobb, Jr., composed a committee which transported 13 inmates of the old soldiers' home to

HUNGARIAN STAFF INVOLVED IN PLOT TO MURDER KING

Bucharest, March 14.—Evidence has been adduced at the trial of seven Hungarians charged with plotting to assassinate King Ferdinand, that the Hungarian general staff was involved in the scheme "in close relation with a Hungarian secret society."

Members of the general staff, it was testified, were concerned in the shipment by Hungary of the infernal machine with which the king's life was to be attempted, and, according to one defendant, the Hungarians customarily had instructions to facilitate the passage of plotters.

When arrested September the defendants had in their possession the infernal machine, with which it is alleged they intended to plant under the royal coach during a festival at the hippodrome.

Skin Ablaze with Eczema Constant Itching Almost Unbearable!

We know there is one thing that stops eczema, and that is more red-blood-cells! S. S. S. builds them by S. S. S. million! And increases your red-blood-cells to the point where it is practically impossible for eczema to exist. We know that as blood-cells increase in number, blood impurities vanish! We also know that night follows day. Both are facts! But have you, eczema sufferers, ever actually taken advantage of this wonderful fact? Thousands just like you have never thought about it! Skin eruptions, eczema with all its fiery, skin-digging torture and its soul-tearing, unrelenting itching, pimples, blackheads and boils, they all pack up and go, when the tide of blood-cells begins to roll in! Blood-cells are the fighting-giants of nature! S. S. S. builds them by the million! It has been doing it since 1882! S. S. S. is one of the greatest blood-cell builders, blood-cleansers and body-builders known to us mortals! When you put these facts together—then to continue to have eczema and skin eruptions looks more like a sin than a disease. Mrs. Arthur N. Smith, Pearl St., Newark, Ohio, writes:

"My little girl had a very bad case of eczema. She began taking S. S. S. and to tell you the truth, I thank you very much, I tell my friends what a good medicine it is. I cannot tell too much about it, for I know it is O. K."

Here is your opportunity. S. S. S. contains only vegetable medicinal ingredients. Because S. S. S. does build red-blood-cells, it cures rheumatism, builds firm flesh, fills out hollow cheeks, beautifies the complexion, builds you up when you are run-down. S. S. S. is sold at all drug stores, in two sizes. The larger size bottle is the more economical.

"But, your honor," protested the speeder who had just received a jail sentence, "you don't realize that my time is worth money."

"Oh, indeed?" said the judge. "Well, if you can produce a single citizen who doesn't consider that his life is more valuable to him than your time is to you, I'll let you off with a nominal fine."

Your Chance to Win a Car

Buick Four—$1,020.00
On display by John Smith Co., 196 West Peachtree Street, and D. C. Black, Whitehall Street and Stewart Avenue.

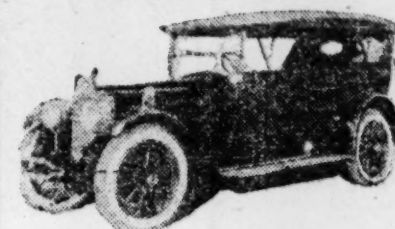

THIS is a simple statement, but it has a volume of meaning. It is really and truly YOUR chance to win a fine automobile, for the beautiful Buick Four, valued at $1,020.00, shown above, will be given the man or woman in The Constitution's Help-Yourself Club who turns in the greatest amount of subscription payments between March 12 and March 24. It is not a question of how much work you have done or how many subscription payments you have turned in prior to MARCH 12, but the WORK DONE BETWEEN THE DATES, MARCH 12 AND MARCH 24. It means, also, that you can win not only the Buick Four as a Special Prize, but one of the Regular Capital or District Automobile Awards shown on this page.

The biggest proposition connected with this winning an automobile is whether you consider the winning worth the effort necessary. There is no letting-up period now, for every member of the Club is working at break-neck speed, realizing that a little indifference right now may constitute a handicap that cannot be overcome. This is the crucial period of the entire campaign for members who are working for the big Capital and District Automobile Awards. It is the period when a dollar in subscription payment secured or lost may sway the voting in favor of or against you in the final tabulation.

NEGOTIATING FOR GAMES BETWEEN REDS AND LOCALS

Bill Brennan Suffers From Concussion of Brain

Chicago Pugilist, Defeated By L. Firpo, South American, Is Removed to N. Y. Hospital

X-Ray of Brennan's Skull Taken in Order to Determine the Extent of Knocked Out Pugilist's Injuries.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

United News Staff Correspondent. New York, March 14.—Large Bill Brennan just barely isn't the corpus delicti in a prize ring killing. He is in the Jewish Memorial hospital suffering from a slight concussion of the brain on the lower left side of the back of his head where Luis Angelo Firpo clubbed him with his knicker's end of a wrist as Bill flopped forward in the last instant of their fight at the Garden.

Bill got a headache about 20 minutes after he came to in his corner. But he thought nothing much about it because a fighter usually does get a headache after being clubbed on the skull for 10 or a dozen rounds. The head still ached Tuesday afternoon and there was a lump on the spot the size of a radish. Tuesday night at 10:30 the headache was worse and so Bill called in the family doctor, who crowded him right around the corner to the hospital and called in specialists. They took X-ray portraits of the bump and informed Leo P. Flynn, his manager, that Brennan was suffering from a slight concussion which might have been worse, considering the presence of other, smaller bumps, denoting that Bill had taken a fearful bashing about the skull.

Under the old fight law, when the fighters were stripped to their ring trunks and had the new gloves harnessed to their wrists and sat waiting in their dressing rooms, an official was supposed to pat his head in and say a legal examination like the "help me growls" of a court bailliff. He was supposed to warn all concerned that if either fighter should be killed, the other fighter and the handlers of both would be held for manslaughter. That has been done away with in the present law and it isn't customary to take any action against a man who injures or even kills another in a regular fight. Two boys have been killed here in the last year, and one, a former champion, who still trains faithfully always thinking he is going to win back his title next week, is what they call "a little bit duffy" from being hammered on the skull.

Kid Williams' Stunt.

Leo Flynn has been "behind" his men in a thousand-and-one fights and he once had a welterweight named Kid Williams, who was leaping for 24 hours after being knocked cold by Frank Klutz. Kid Williams came down to breakfast the next morning in his ring trunks with his hands ready-banged, scuffed his feet on the dining room rug and told Flynn he "felt fine." He thought the fight was just about to start.

Dr. Edward L. Suiter, one of the specialists, told the United News that the X-ray showed no fracture of the skull, but did show a swelling of the tissue on the external side of the bone. Bill's concussion is not of the mild, momentary type which occurs when a man is knocked cold by a blow on the point of the jaw. But neither is it of the most serious type unless it should develop that there is a bursted vessel or a blood clot, not shown by the X-ray photographs. It is to note the possible appearance of such things that Dr. Suiter is in the hospital indefinitely. Dr. Suiter said he does not know how long Bill will be laid up.

The highest temperature ever recorded at Havana is 101 degrees and the lowest 50 degrees.

PREPS READY FOR BIG CUT

BY ROY E. WHITE.

Prep baseball is rapidly rounding into shape and by the latter part of next week all of the teams will be ready for a game or two. The opening of the season is only twelve days off and each minute between now and Tuesday afternoon, March 27, at 3 o'clock, will be used to advantage. As yet very few of the prep coaches have used the pruning knife on the squads, but several are sharpening up the edges preparing to do the job Friday and Saturday.

There will be eight prep baseball teams in the league against five for last season. The competition should be keen from the beginning, because at last season have been weakened considerably by graduation. Tech High and University lost the cream of the baseball in the league in the persons of Richardson, Cole, Starnes, Murray, Weatherly, Red Laird, Ted Boswell and others.

Tech High will be hit hardest by graduation as only three of the championship nine are again in school and Coach Holman and Doyal are working overtime developing a new combination. Terrell, Cousins and Settle are the only veterans left.

Coaches Hodges and Simpson at University are also facing the task of building up a team of new faces. The catching and pitching departments will be far at present of but the infield must be filled with new men. Freeman looms up as the likely choice for first base and Dick Peel, when he is not pitching, will most likely be used at second. Short and third will be filled by newcomers and practically the entire outfield will be taken care of by recruits.

G. M. A. Prospects.

Coach Wright at G. M. A. is facing the same task as in basketball, that of developing a new team. Dobie Webb, the giant catcher of the cadet nine last year is again out for the team to retain his old position. Just what his ability "Long Boy" Hearn has is not known at present but if he can throw a baseball as he chucks a basketball, then Coach Wright will not have any worry over the pitching problem. Hearn has the build for a pitcher.

Coach Lucien Hope seems to be on the road to building a real baseball team at Fulton. He has been working for some time with a large bunch of players. Lucien will have a scrapping little nine anyway. None of the Fulton players has the reputation of being a star at present and every man on the club works together and that is what counts in baseball.

Marist should have a good baseball year as very few of the old men from last year will be missing. The infield with one exception will be returned. The catching and pitching departments will be returned intact but the outfield will be composed of new men.

Nothing definite is known of the strength of the Decatur and Commercial teams. It will be the first appearance of a Decatur baseball team in the league, while Commercial is considered one of the new entrants into the league. Commercial played baseball in the league several seasons ago.

'TRAMPS' PLAY J. P. C. QUINTET

Tonight at 8:15 o'clock the Jewish Progressive club will end its basketball season by playing against the J. P. C. all-stars and the Aurora team.

The J. P. C. and Trinity fives have met before this season, the J. P. C. being returned victors by a small score. The game tonight should be better than the one earlier in the season as both teams have been doing a bit of extra work in preparation for the final game.

The Jewish Progressive club is one of the fastest teams in the city and its record for the season is a good one. The team has played the Jacksonville and Savannah Y. M. C. A. teams and has been returned victor in each case.

The Trinity Tramps play in one of the Sunday School leagues and only Tuesday night the Tramp five beat the fast Fort McPherson team in the Fort gym. Bell the lanky center on the Tech High team is playing with the Tramps. Wimberly, coach of the Fulton High quintet last season, is also playing on the Tramp team.

Dr. Bernard Chedel Dies.

Athens, Ga., March 14.—Funeral services for Dr. Bernard Chedel, prominent physician of Lexington and well known in Athens were held in Lexington Tuesday morning following his death Monday morning. He was 77 years old and leaves a large number of relatives in Athens and throughout this section of the state.

Crackers' Greenest Rookie Found Asked What Shrimps Were Made of

BY HENRY ALLEN

Palatka, Fla., March 14.—(Special.)—The greenest of all rookies among the battermen in the Cracker training camp is Fred Augustus Newberry, the 20-year-old southpaw who hails from Morgan county, Tennessee, which is in the very heart of the moonshine district.

Newberry seems well acquainted with electric lights, bathtubs and managed to get in an upper berth on the Pullman which brought the squad to the Land of Sunshine and Flowers. But Wednesday morning he wanted to know what Otto Miller had to do with the club.

The scene of this little story is laid in the lobby of the Hotel Martin, where the squad is quartered. Ye humble scribe, Buddy Williamson, and King Brady were discussing the advisability of going fishing, when some one inquired as to Miller's whereabouts.

"Say, who is this fellow Miller and what has he got to do with the club?" was the question asked by the lanky mountaineer.

"Why he is the manager," was the reply fired back at the rookie.

Georgia Tech's Big Race Scheduled for Saturday

Winner of Annual Road Race Will Get a Track Letter—Second and Third Win Points.

BY JOHN STATION.

Saturday is the day set for Tech's cross-country run. The total entry list will not miss the thousand mark.

All Tech's six hundred freshmen are required to run. There is no force used, but certain kinds of influence work to such an end that the freshmen usually turn out one hundred per cent.

First, there is class pride. The freshmen, due to their larger numbers have the decided edge when it comes to chances for victory. Then, there is dormitory pride. It's known as the "freshman" and the "upper" and "lower" shacks against those two every year.

And, of course not least, is that good old chance to win one of the cakes.

Many of the upper classmen also run, because they want the exercise, though that number is comparatively small. Then some run for class pride and many run in order to increase the number of points for their frat or other organization.

Might Win Letter.

Probably the biggest incentive is the chance to win a letter. The athletic association offers a letter to the man winning first place, and points towards a letter to the men finishing second and third. Horace Moore made his letter that way last year.

There is always the lurking danger that the record will be lowered. About six years ago, when the record was

Hoppe Retains His Title In Match With Schaefer

Challenger Throws Scare Into Champion With High Run of 244 in the Fifth Inning.

New York, March 14.—Willie Hoppe, world 182 ballline billiard champion, retained his title tonight, defeating Jake Schaefer, challenger, 1,500 to 1,341. Hoppe, defeated 500 to 277 Monday night in the first block of the match, overcame Schaefer's lead last night, reaching the 1,000 point mark while the challenger was counting 904. The champion ran his final 500 points tonight in 12 innings.

Resuming from his unfinished run of 99 in the second block tonight, Hoppe counted 43 before missing. He took a long lead in the third inning with a run of 186. Schaefer, a marvelous shot-maker, made the highest run of the match in his fifth inning, 244, and drew to within 29 points of Hoppe. The title holder pulled away with a run of 113 in his sixth inning and was never headed.

Hoppe ran 43, missing the cushion bank for position after losing the balls on a difficult masse. Schaefer missed a two-cushion shot after counting 3. Hoppe made a two-cushion bank and missed a three-cushion carom. Schaefer played wide on a two-cushion draw. Schaefer appeared nervous.

Hoppe gathered 40, then played three three-cushion shots for a gather. He counted to 78 and froze all the balls. Calling for a shot he made the shot and continued. On his one hundredth shot he drove the white around the table for a perfect gather. He made a freak two-cushion bank on his two hundredth shot. At 155 he got the balls a-straddle the balk line at the head of the table. He split them on his 170th count and used the bridge for a two-cushion bank in the upper corner on the next. After making a remarkable three-cushion carom for his 180th count, Hoppe missed on an easy three-cushion carom. Schaefer tried a three-cushion shot and missed.

Grand total: Hoppe 1,341; Schaefer 907.

Hoppe Added Thirty.

The champion made two one-cushion shots on the side rail and failed on a three-cushion around the table. Schaefer made a one-cushion cut shot across the table and missed an easy draw. Hoppe counted 30 on open billiards, missing a three-cushion carom for position. Schaefer collected the balls on the head rail after ten driving shots. On the 324 count he made a difficult follow-up shot and continued the run.

Schaefer counted to 75 by nursing closely the lower balk line. Hoppe drove the white around the table on the 80th count and gained perfect position, going on to the 100 mark. Schaefer was playing a great game, but he was out of his element on the least deliberation. He split them on the 130th count and drove the white ball 12 times before gathering them. They were split again at 142. He gathered them in free territory at 165 and went on.

Schaefer executed a brilliant masse in a lower corner to top Hoppe's high run of 186. He had them close together 200. He made a difficult three rail shot at 243, a masse on 244 and then missed one cushion shot. The score then was: Hoppe 1,202; Schaefer 1,242.

The champion counted 50 at the close game then made 18 with the balls scattered. His 68th shot was a swing draw, two rails across the upper end of the table. He drew the balls together on the shot and continued to 100 when he drove both balls around the table for position. He made 113 and missed a close follow-up.

His total then was 1,375 against Schaefer's 1,242.

BAPTISTS IN BASKET WIN

The First Baptist quintet won its battle with the Stewart avenue five 14 to 11 in one of the games played in the Sunday school leagues under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. last night at the Central Y. Y. It was one of the most exciting games of a splendid program, despite the fact that the score was not the closest of the evening.

The distinction must be accorded the game between the Inman Park Baptists and their rivals from the T. N. T. class of the Baptist tabernacle. The tabernacle lads won this encounter, the score being 14-13 and there never was much difference between the scores at any part of the struggle.

David Hill Methodist defeated the St. Paul Methodist 34 to 18 and still another quintet from St. Paul Baptist aggregation 34 to 12.

T. H. S. RIFLE TEAM WINNER

BY HENRY ALLEN.

Special Staff Correspondent.

Palatka, Fla., March 14.—(Special.)—With "Buddy" Napier, veteran twirler of last year, and Jack Dumont, an ex-big leaguer, reporting to Manager Otto Miller in uniform today the Cracker's pitching squad is just about intact. Jack Ryan is the only missing man in the list of twirlers given out by President Corbett. Manager Miller seems very little concerned whether Ryan puts in his appearance.

We have a good list of pitchers now and it is going to be one more job of cutting the squad when the time comes," said Manager Miller.

Miller has in camp the greatest array of pitching material that the Atlanta club has boasted of in many seasons. Of the southpaws he has Nehaus, former major league slab artist; Cliff Best, a youngster secured from Toronto in the International League; Newberry and Ware, two youngsters, who have been going good in semi-pro ball and are likely to make some one hustle before the final selection is over. It is almost certain that the Atlanta club will keep its hand on the two last named if they fail to make the grade.

While among the right-handers are Bennie Karr, secured from Boston; King Brady, who played with Milwaukee; Jack Dumont, formerly with Boston; Elmer Hymel, who is having his third tryout with the Cracker; Manley Llewellyn, secured from the Yankees; "Buddy" Napier, with the Cracker for the past two seasons, and who came from Cincinnati, and "Buddy" Williamson, who tried out with the Cracker last season.

JACKET NINE GIVEN SUITS

BY JOHN STATION.

Coach Clay and company put Tech's baseball team on notice late yesterday, following the issue of the new uniforms, that the first man who showed up for practice in this new regalia would be handed, drawn and quartered in deep centerfield, just as soon as the forces necessary to the accomplishment of this could be mustered.

Late yesterday the new uniforms were issued and the "T" men would no more think of laying these new "monkey suits" down somewhere than they would think of leaving their pitching or throwing arm in the club house before an important game.

They are as proud of these new suits as Mrs. Newstead could be of her first "batch" of biscuits.

The suits are plain white with a gold braid and a gold T on the right shoulder. Caps are plain white, with a small "T" on the visor. Stockings half gold and half white, the gold half being on top.

Picture Taking Day.

The occasion for this generosity was the picture making day. The annual goes to press soon, and it was desired to have a picture of all the last year letter men.

So coach set aside the day and had most all the picture making done that will be accomplished this year. "Monkey suits" down somewhere than they would think of leaving their pitching or throwing arm in the club house before an important game.

After the pictures a little game was played with Enloe and Sneed as the rival mountaineers. There was time for five innings before dark.

Mitchell Leading.

Walter Mitchell, Tech's track man, right end and "beauty" specialist, forced ahead yesterday in the special "Valentino" contest being conducted at school.

For some time, there has been much discussion as to the ugliest man in school, who, when and how come. So a campaign was put on to decide this question. Votes cost one cent each.

At present the track men seem to be leading the field, but there are several football men to be reckoned with ere this campaign comes to a close.

to the head rail on 15 counts. At 25 counts he spread them on a bank shot, but had them together again at forty. A bad kiss on the 47th shot forced him to drive around the table again. He missed a three cushion shot after counting 55 and his total was 1,479, against the challenger's 1,335.

Schaefer collected 16 and failed on a two-cushion draw. Hoppe, with 21 to go, drew the balls together on his third shot. He counted to 20 on the balk line and caromed into the left hand upper corner for the winning shot.

PILES CURED WITHOUT SURGE-Y

An instructive book has been published by Dr. T. W. Hughes, the noted rectal specialist of Atlanta. This book tells how piles can be quickly and easily cured without the use of knife, scissors, "hot" iron, electricity, "hot" oil, or any other cutting or burning method, without confinement, bed rest, or hospital bills.

Diamond at Palatka in Splendid Shape and Candidates Are Sent Through Hardest Workout of the Training Period.

Palatka, Fla., March 14.—(Special.)—The Cracker's seem to be very popular in this section of the country. A party of citizens from Green Cove Springs, a city 25 miles north of here, called on Manager Miller and asked that Atlanta club train there next season. No answer could be given the Green Cove Springs citizens, but Manager Miller, with President Jack Corbett, intends to inspect the diamond next week. The entire squad has been invited as the guests of the Palatka citizens to motor to St. Augustine Sunday to witness the exhibition game between the Cincinnati Reds and the St. Augustine team. The following Sunday the entire club will motor to Daytona Beach to witness two major league clubs in another exhibition game.

Hardly had this message been received before Manager Miller also received a long drive call from Orlando, the training camp of the Cincinnati Reds, asking for a game here Saturday. Manager Miller was forced to decline because of absence of the infielders and outfielders, but negotiations for a game next week or the week following have been started. It is certain that at least four games will be played in Palatka, while the regular schedule exhibition games will not start until April.

The practice today was the longest since training began. The squad took the field promptly at 1 o'clock and it was a few minutes after the old town clock had chimed out the hour of 3 before the order for the showers was given. Manager Miller continued his personal instructions to all members of the pitching staff, while the boys were allowed to cap loose with a few fast ones, although they were cautioned time after time to hold themselves down. The usual "pepper" games lasted for a good while and the hot sun had many of the overweight boys shedding a lot of their surplusage.

Bill Barnhart and Russ Moore, the only outfielders in the crew, were given an opportunity to chase a few in the outer gardens, with Llewellyn and "Buddy" Napier using the fungo. "Buddy" and Lew managed to drop a few over the fence. So far no sore arms have developed among the twirlers and no traces of the rain which started yesterday afternoon and continued until late last night, could not be found this morning.

When the squad took the field today the diamond was in excellent shape, while the weather was ideal. There was a cloudless sky and a light mid-summer breeze was blowing across the field when the Cracker's went through the workout.

The squad was allowed to use the clubhouse on the field for the first time this afternoon. The clubhouse has just been completed, while the hot and cold water awaited the tired athletes as they dragged in to clean up. Palatka continues with the hospitality which has made the visit of the Cracker's so pleasant. Many of the boys were taken for auto rides over the country, and through orange groves during the afternoon. Manager Miller expects to have the men in excellent shape by the time the remainder of the squad arrives next Sunday.

BABE RUTH DISCOVERS RANGE AT NEW ORLEANS

New York, March 14.—The range of Heinemann park at New Orleans, described as the largest playing field in the world, was found yesterday by Babe Ruth, who used the new measurements and he knocked five home runs over the fence, his first home run barrage of the year. A sixth fell a few feet short.

The last big worry of Miller Huggins, manager of the Yankees, disappeared yesterday with Ruth's showing and the capitulation of Herb Pennock, southpaw pitcher, the last of the holdouts who came to terms and got into practice.

After his outburst, which he attributed to the acquisition of a new bat, Ruth said he needed an air and bumped a golf ball around one of the Pelican courses.

MOREHOUSE JURY COMPLETES PROBE

State Will Not Disclose Names Until Arrests Are Made in Event Jury Returns Indictments.

Bastrop, La., March 14.—(By the Associated Press.)—Examination of witnesses in connection with its investigation of the activities of hooded gangs in Morehouse parish which reached their height last August with the abduction and slaying of Watt Daniel and T. P. Richard, was completed today by the grand jury. The jury is not expected to report until it has concluded its routine of work for the term, but it is understood this will require only a few hours and it is believed it will be ready to communicate with the court sometime tomorrow.

Should the jury vote indictments it has been reiterated the identity of those against whom true bills were returned would not be disclosed until after their arrest. In the event the jury reported tomorrow with indictments, warrants could be issued immediately and the sheriff could arrest the defendants within a few hours.

Harry Neelis, the last witness, was the only person to appear today before the jury.

He testified at the open hearing that he was held up near here last summer and recognized T. Jeff Burnett, former deputy sheriff of Morehouse parish, and a man named Rogers, who were unmasked, but later put on black hoods. On another occasion prior to last August he declared he was stopped by a masked band with Daniel and W. C. Andrews when he recognized Captain M. K. Skipwith, exalted cyclops of the Morehouse Ku Klux Klan, as a member of the party.

He said that Richard told him that he recognized Captain Skipwith and two other men as members of a masked band which held him up last July.

SEEK RELATIVES OF MAN FOUND NEAR DAWSON, GA.

Dawson, Ga., March 14.—(Special.)—An aged white man, giving his name as Marion Weems, and appearing to be about 70 years of age and mentally disarranged, was picked up north of the city near the Seaboard railway section settlement, three miles from Dawson late this afternoon. The old gentleman states that his home is in Henry county, Alabama, near Abbeville, and that he has been on a visit to relatives near Winder, Ga., and Athens, having left his home about 10 days or two weeks ago and is now trying to get back.

The old man was seen to get off the Central of Georgia passenger train in Brownwood, seven miles east of Dawson, yesterday afternoon and since that time has wandered to the place where he was located today north of the city some 10 or 12 miles from where he left the train.

The stranger is uneducated and when questioned by a reporter at the sheriff's office here tonight, his mind seemed almost blank. He states that he is related to a family of Saunders and McKissick's near Winder, also Rebecca and Thomas Weems, of Barrow county, Georgia. He claims to have lived about 12 miles out of Abbeville, Ala., where he now has two sons residing, but these cannot be located by the sheriff of this county.

Local authorities are calling upon the newspapers to help them locate some relative of Weems to whom they might carry the old gentleman. He temporarily is in good hands, the sheriff having given him a place to stay until relatives can be located.

BATES BIDS ADIEU TO HIS COMMAND AT FORT SCREVEN

Fort Screven, March 14.—Clad in a blue serge "civil" suit, his jaws set, and standing at rigid attention, Colonel Walter T. Bates, commander of the Eighty infantry, veteran of European experience, saluted his command this morning and bade them farewell, while the veteran band of that war-time organization softly played "Auld Lang Syne."

Colonel Bates has been ordered to join the adjutant general department with headquarters in a New York camp.

Grandson of Slidell, Of Civil War Fame, Suicides From Ship

New York, March 14.—William Slidell, of Boston, member of an old New England family, whose grandfather figured in the Mason and Slidell incident with Great Britain during the civil war, committed suicide Monday by leaping from the steamer Providence, the captain reported when the vessel arrived today from French and Italian ports.

Princeton, N. J., March 14.—William J. Slidell, who committed suicide at sea, was a member of the Princeton university class of 1889. It was stated at the office of the university registrar.

While definite information was unavailable, it was generally understood at the university that Slidell was a grandson of the Slidell made famous through the Mason and Slidell case during the civil war.

LEGION POSTS PLAN MEMORIAL BRIDGE

Waycross, Ga., March 14.—(Special.)—The American legion posts of Ware and Pierce counties are preparing to erect a memorial arch to the heroes of the world's war from the two counties, midway on the bridge over the Satilla river on the road from Waycross to Blackshear.

On one side the arch will be a tablet to the memory of the Ware county boys and on the other side a similar tablet to commemorate the lasting service rendered by the Pierce county boys.

A committee from the post will meet with the two bond commissions of the counties interested at an early date, and at that time details for the construction of the arch will be discussed.

The bridge, plans for which are now being prepared will be of concrete and will replace the old wooden bridge, which for many years has served as the connecting link between the two counties over the Satilla river.

SOUTHERN RAILWAY BUYS EQUIPMENT

C., March 14.—(Special.)—New cars and locomotives costing seven million dollars have been ordered by the Southern railway system, this being in addition to equipment costing thirteen million dollars purchased in 1922, making a total outlay of thirty million dollars for equipment by the Southern the last two years, according to an official announcement issued today.

SCOUT BLACKMAIL DEFENSE OF RUTH

Attorney for Girl Asking $50,000 Damages for Alleged Assault Will File Suit Thursday.

New York, March 14.—Miss DuBois Dixon's $50,000 suit against Babe Ruth, Yankee home run slugger, based on alleged attacks made during automobile trips on Long Island remained unfilled today.

George Feinberg, the girl's attorney, said the complaint probably would be filed tomorrow. He denied Ruth's charge that the action was a blackmail plot.

Papers in the county clerk's office at Brooklyn show that an order was signed appointing Barbara V. Escoe, guardian ad litem for the girl to permit the bringing of an action for damages against "Hermann C. Ruth."

Babe's name is George Herman Ruth, Mr. Feinberg said, however, that the Babe was the defendant, the mystery declared he would disprove Ruth's claim that he did not know the girl. Hyman Bushell, Ruth's attorney, has employed detectives to trace her history.

Mystery Deepens In Disappearance Of Catholic Priest

Virden, Ill., March 14.—(By the Associated Press.)—Clues found on his automobile today deepened the mystery surrounding the disappearance of Father John A. Vranjak, rector of the Sacred Heart Catholic church here, who has been missing for nine days. The automobile, which was found in St. Louis last Saturday, was turned over by the police there to the priest's brother, Adolph M. Vranjak, of Chicago, who drove it to Virden.

Local authorities announced that an examination of the car revealed that scratched in point on the back of the seat in letters 6 inches high, were the words, "We won."

The churchman's mother, Mrs. Johanna Vranjak, made an impassioned plea to members of the searching parties to bring back her son, dead or alive, but told them to refrain from violence and remain within the law.

Rewards totaling $2,500 have been offered for information leading to his return.

Clowns Galore to Feature Indoor Hippodrome Circus

Yaarab Officials Will Provide Six of Best Fun-makers in Business for Show.

It has been many a season since the first circus clown hit upon the idea of making up as a hayseed of the greenest type, and after convulsing every body by his apparent innocence in getting in the way of the circus people, and on a dare climbed on a ring horse, and after falling off—or nearly so—half a dozen times, finally brought rounds of applause as he stood up boldly, snatching his garments until he stood revealed as the star hayseed rider of the outfit.

Clowning at a circus has undergone many changes since that act was new, and the fun-makers continue to develop new stunts—new clowns, new acts. So at Yaarab Temple's indoor hippodrome circus all next week in the auditorium the big crowds will see something new to produce amusement and laughter. Six of the best clowns in the business have been engaged by Potentate Gibson for this event, and he has two small boys who are the best critics anywhere on just what constitutes a good clown, his make sure that he would not come in for any fireside criticism in producing Yaarab's big circus.

Eight individual acts have been engaged for the big circus, seven of which double, making fifteen acts in all, and as they will all appear in one ring on the stage, Yaarab's circus will be really bigger and a longer performance than any three-ring big top that ever laved Atlanta.

Potentate Gibson has sent complimentary tickets to the children in every charitable institution in and around Atlanta for Monday's matinee.

Father Journeys From Jerusalem To Plead for Son

Begs Pardon Board for Release of Boy Who Erred.

Tallahassee, Fla., March 14.—The white bearded old patriarch who left his home in Jerusalem when he left his son, Eddie Horary, had been sentenced to two years in Duval county, Florida, for breaking and entering a store and pilfering for 8 months to reach the pardon board in his behalf yesterday, had returned to Jacksonville today to await action of the board on his plea.

The board in the meantime continued its hearings of attorneys, scores of them, who appeared before the board in its first semi-annual meeting. Attorneys' arguments and mothers' pleas were heard in behalf of more than 30 convicts yesterday; it was probable as many more would be heard today. Approximately 150 convicts are on the docket for consideration and they will keep the board, comprised of six members of the state administration, in public session through Friday at least.

PRISONER SEEKS TO VISIT MOTHER INJURED IN FALL

Americus, Ga., March 14.—(Special.)—Mrs. B. P. Chapman, aged mother of Dr. Charles K. Chapman, fell today while on a stairway leading from the second story of the Chapman home and sustained a broken hip.

A large dog kept by the Chapman family which rose in friendly greeting as Mrs. Chapman approached, caused her to become unbalanced and fall. She is nearly 80 years of age, and because of her advanced age and heart complications, it is feared will die.

Dr. Chapman, who is serving a life sentence in the state penitentiary at Milledgeville for the murder of Walter Wade, has applied for permission to visit his mother and it is expected he will be permitted to come to Americus under guard to be with her. Governor Hardwick heard arguments on the application of Dr. Chapman and Warren I. Johnson for parole several days ago and it is probable he may hasten action on their application in order to permit Dr. Chapman to remain with his stricken mother permanently.

The prison commission has recommended a pardon for both Dr. Chapman and Johnson, who was convicted with him for the same crime.

Mrs. Bates Is Honored.

Mrs. S. F. Boykin entertained at luncheon Wednesday at the Capital City club, the occasion complimenting Mrs. Elizabeth Winship Bates, and the occasion celebrated the birthday of the honor guest.

The luncheon table was overlaid with a lace cloth, and the central decoration was a silver basket, holding Ascension lilies and jonquils. The handle of the basket was tied with a bow of yellow tulle. Encircling the centerpiece were silver candlesticks holding yellow unshaded tapers and alternating with compots filled with yellow and white mints. Attractive hand-painted cards further carried out the color scheme of yellow and white.

Mrs. Jarnagin Will Give "L'Africaine" at Y. W. Tonight

At the Y. W. C. A. fourth floor Peachtree Arcade, at 7:30 o'clock this evening, L'Africaine will open the series of opera interpretations that Mrs. W. C. Jarnagin is planning to give, free of charge, not only to the girls and women of the Young Women's Christian association, but to all girls and business women of Atlanta who desire to attend. Mrs. Jarnagin will give interpretations of the entire opera program, as a contribution of her talent to the association. The complete series of opera interpretations will be open, free of charge, to business girls and women. A vocal solo will be used by Mrs. Jarnagin as she tells, with her dramatic insight, the story of L'Africaine. Her program every Thursday evening at the "Y." will follow that of the every Wednesday opera interpretations that are being given at the Atlanta Women's club.

Mrs. Jarnagin's evening at the Y. W. C. A. will be in the nature of a home reunion for her and the business women, many of whom she used to entertain with her voice and dramatic talent when the Y. W. C. A. was located in the old Auditorium on Houston street. As Mrs. Jarnagin's interpretations for the "Y." girls and women are being given solely for business girls and women, those in charge emphasize that the evening can not be open to the public.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Sneaky Shoes. There is perhaps nothing so annoying as sneaky shoes. Place them in a dish with just enough lard to cover the soles and let them stand all night.

Just Remember. New linoleum will last longer and clean more readily if given a light coat of varnish.

Tears and holes mended before laundering will be much smaller than if they are rubbed.

If the broom is dipped into a pail of boiling soda water and then dried in the sun, it will be like new.

What Women Wear

BY ANNE RITTENHOUSE

Dressmakers Decide to Decorate Their Spring Materials With Fur. Reviving a Pre-war Fashion That Gives the Furriers Delight and Will Offer Them a New Opportunity to Sell Their Products.

Once in the halcyon days before the world conflagration women insisted upon wearing precious and semi-precious furs with chiffon on hot August days. Possibly you remember the fashion. It was a common sight to see women wearing immense red foxes over their shoulders and between white voile gowns and an irreducible minimum of underwear and huge shade hats that flopped in the breeze.

The fashion died out. Cold and have been no furs against frigid fabrics. Women substituted leather coats, suede jackets, sport mufflers. What they will do this summer is not yet written on the books of fashion, but the dressmakers have decided to use all that leftover and broken of fur in their establishments on the transparent clothes they offer for spring.

Georgette crepe, which holds its own in fashion, is trimmed with skirt borders of fur, its wide sleeves are edged with it, there are broad girdles of peltry, there are linings of it in fabrics that one can see through. Squirrel is used, also kolinsky, marten, rabbit, Siberian cat, Chinese lion and much-divided mink. Sport costumes of white flannel, white tulle, rosepink knitted silk, gray kasha, are topped with fur. Flaring Persian jackets of white flannel elaborately embroidered with figures in colored silks are bordered with squirrel or banded with black coney.

The sketch shows a loose wrap of beige crepe de chine lined with narrow bands of fur. The wide sleeves are made of circular ruffles put into a light under sleeve. The wrap is held together with a careless sash of georgette. The frock beneath is made of the same material lavishly embroidered.

It is too early to say whether large foxes will be worn over the shoulders. It appears, however, that fur will be attached to garments. If spring continues cool, women will have no hesitancy in wearing the short jacket of this fur which was launched early last year. There are boleros of fur lined with brilliant figured crepe or Oriental silk.

The HOUSEHOLD Edited by Anne Rittenhouse

EGGS FOR SPRINGTIME. Without doubt eggs are far less expensive than they used to be—than they have been for several months, that is. Hence, it is a decidedly good time to make use of them rather lavishly.

Moreover, as spring advances, meat seems sometimes less desirable than it does in the winter, and we like eggs substituted for it once a week, perhaps, even for dinner. And for luncheon they are admirable several times a week.

Here are some good ways of preparing them, ways that add interesting flavor and sometimes further food value to the eggs themselves:

Rice Omelet.

Mix one cup of cold boiled rice with one of warm milk, one tablespoon melted butter, three well-beaten eggs and salt and pepper to taste. Cook in a hot greased skillet like an omelet.

Remove the crust from a slice of stale bread and put it to soak in enough hot milk to cover it. Beat separately the whites and yolks of six eggs; add the soaked bread to the yolks and beat smooth; season with pepper and salt; add the whites; stir well together and pour into a saucepan on the range, in which is a tablespoon or two of melted butter; cook rather slowly, carefully lifting the edges of the omelet with your spoon, that it may be all evenly cooked; as soon as it is well set fold one-half over the other, and serve.

Baked Eggs.

Butter a shallow baking-dish; break the eggs into it; season with pepper and salt, and put a bit of butter on each; bake until well set. Remove to a warm platter and serve. (Copyright, 1923, by The Constitution.)

Trio of Gifted Bradley Sisters Are Prominent in Chosen Work

BY MARTHA GOODE ANDERSON.
Florence, Miranda and Margaret Bradley, the three talented daughters of the late distinguished Horace Bradley, are a trio of whom this city may justly be proud.

Each has won distinction in her own line. Miss Miranda Bradley has, until very recently, been at the Grady hospital in this city, where her social service work has proved her ability and efficiency. Miss Margaret Bradley has won, and is winning honors for herself as a social welfare worker in the classic city of Boston.

Heads Health Library.
Miss Florence Bradley is librarian of the National Health library in New York city.

These gifted girls have an inheritance of ability and talent from their father, who in his lifetime was one of the most distinguished artists of America and to whom is due the distinction of having founded the Art league in New York city. Their mother, Dr. Bradley, is at the head of child welfare work in Little Rock, Ark., and has won a national reputation for her services in behalf of child welfare in America.

In the current issue of the Library Journal Miss Florence Bradley writes interestingly of the health library, the latest expression of the need for reference libraries, of which she is the head. Miss Florence Bradley received her literary training in the library school of Atlanta. Later she followed her profession of librarian in branches of the public library in New York city.

"Librarianship Adventure."
The National Health library is called "An Adventure in Librarianship." It grew, according to Miss Bradley, out of the needs for a special reference library for health groups and, as she writes: "It may be said that it was at this point that there virtually came than through the public libraries of the country."

Four Groups Combine.
Within six months after organization the four libraries which continued to make the National Health library, American Social Hygiene association, the National Committee for Mental Hygiene, the National Organization for Public Health Nursing and the National Tuberculosis association moved to 370 Seventh avenue in New York city. It is there that Miss Bradley carries on her work.

Women Tell Each Other How They Have Been Helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Perryburg, O.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I suffered with pains in my sides all the time. I can't remember just how long I suffered, but it was for some time. One day I was talking with a lady I met on a car, and I told her how I was feeling and she said she had been just like I was with pains and nervous troubles, and she took the Vegetable Compound, and it cured her. So then I went and got some, and I certainly recommend it for it is good. Whenever I see any woman who is sick I try to get her to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. ADA FRICK, Route 3, Perryburg, Ohio.

In nearly every neighborhood in every town and city in this country there are women who have been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the treatment of ailments peculiar to their sex, and they take pleasure in passing the good word along to other women. Therefore, if you are troubled in this way, why not give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

Railroads Seeking Cross-Town Freight Temporary Embargo

Hearing of this petition of the railroads running into Atlanta, for a temporary embargo on cross-town movements of freight, was postponed on Wednesday by the public service commission until March 21.

There is considerable opposition to this petition by several Atlanta business houses. The reason advanced by the roads is that they wish to release approximately five hundred freight cars which are tied up in this work, for use in moving produce now badly needed by the farmers. The roads declare that the local freight movements can be conveniently handled by truck.

MULTIPLE LISTING WILL BE DISCUSSED

Discussion of multiple listing, which occupied the attention of the Atlanta real estate board at its luncheon last Thursday, will be continued at the weekly luncheon at 1 o'clock today at the Penock club.

In January, 30 real estate boards had adopted the system and 25 others had it under serious consideration, officials stated Wednesday.

THE VITAL FLAME

BY MAY CHRISTIE

A Stirring Serial of Primitive Passions

Who's Who in the Story?

Marcella Field, beautiful girl, is sought in marriage by Warwick Tremaine, a powerful man in the financial world, who does not seem to enjoy the memory of an indiscretion in his efforts to persuade her to accept him as her husband.

Miles Holden, a rising young sculptor, has won Marcella's love, however. Tremaine, aware of this, tells Marcella that Holden is engaged with another girl.

Leonie Day, a calculating young woman, whom he has set up in a millinery shop in London, she plans to marry Miles in Paris and introduce herself as a person considerably above her station.

Lady Warrington, a famous woman of middle age.

CHAPTER XIII.

Miss Leonie Makes Progress.

There are two sorts of women in the world. Those who scheme and plot and plan for their own advancement. And the simpler and more admirable souls who love to give, and give to love.

Leonie Day was in the former class. She had very little feeling in her composition. But such feeling as she had, was directed towards Miles Holden.

It was not disinterested. Intuitively she knew that Miles would rise in his profession, and if she could rise with him, his prestige would be hers.

Had he been poor and struggling, no doubt she would have heroically suppressed her passion for him, as "foolish" and "impossible."

Of such stuff was Miss Leonie made.

It had been a stroke of luck in her life, when she had met Miles Holden, and making such a definite impression on that influential lady.

"Although," the wise Leonie told herself, with a contemptuous little curl at the corner of her cleverly made-up mouth, "she'd forget me tomorrow if someone else more amusing or more useful came along. I know her kind."

It was lucky, then, that the lady's special cronies did not happen to be in Paris, and that Leonie would cement the "friendship."

This she proceeded to do with energy and cleverness. She played on the other's foibles with a practiced hand. Having remodelled her figure and her hair, she treated Lady Warrington as though the latter were a beauty and a Cleopatra, which she naturally delighted the rather foolish soul.

She went carefully through her wardrobe, too, sometimes condemning outright, sometimes modifying, but neglected always by an excellent, trained taste.

"Anyone with your subtle type of good looks must be frightfully careful in her clothes," she would admonish gently. "For instance, that is absolutely 'verboten' because she flung on one side a crude Chinese blue silk frock—"and that tulle cloak is too muddy for your skin, and never, never wear pale rose. You can have it dyed a rich wine red, if you like—" And so on, to a meek and obedient listener.

They went together to Miles Holden's exhibition.

could give him would be mighty useful.

At a tiny table specially designed for two, in one of the cozy little restaurants for which Paris is so justly famous, sat Leonie Day—a massaged, manicured, marcelled young woman—the battery of whose bright black eyes was turned in full force on a slender, bronzed young man beside her.

"It's simply priceless, seeing you again," quoth she, trying to bring her rather high-pitched tones down to the deeper note he admired in women's voices. (He had once quoted Shakespeare on that subject. Something about "her voice was ever soft, gentle and low.") Miles was a bit faddy, but his fancies must be catered to. Sculptors were temperamental folk!

"And it's equally delightful, meeting you," said the young man rather absent-mindedly, picking up the menu card and scanning it. "It's quite a bit of luck that we happened to be in Paris at the same time."

That was promising!

GREAT FOOD SHOW TO BE DISCUSSED

Important Meeting Will Be Held by Committee This Afternoon—National Officers Reach City.

Important matters relating to the National Food show which opens at the Auditorium on Monday, March 20, and continues throughout the week, will be discussed at a luncheon of the food show committee at 1 o'clock today at the Wincoff hotel.

The meeting will be the first to be held by the committee since the arrival here of J. E. Langman, manager, and Miss Ethel Clarke, assistant manager, of the national food show department of the National Association of Retail Grocers.

Tuesday afternoon. They busied themselves Wednesday with preparations for the exhibition.

The eyes of food manufacturers in the United States, as well as the distributors, will be focused on the Atlanta National Food show for two reasons.

First, the food show will be under the management of the National Association of Retail Grocers, which is composed of the local and state retail grocers' associations throughout the country.

Another and perhaps greater reason is that the national association has as its president an Atlanta man, Francis E. Kaemper, a man of high integrity and great business ability.

An outstanding feature of the national food show will be the educational exhibits, according to Mr. Langman.

"Without them no food show is complete," he said. "In this work we ask the co-operation of municipal departments, the women's clubs and various other organizations interested in thrift, sanitation and nutrition."

The food show committee, in addition to Mr. Langman and Miss Clarke, includes the following:

R. V. Bergou, secretary; John T. Carroll, vice chairman; M. M. Bulard, Vincent Chelona, A. C. Hildebrand, T. L. Lyle, J. L. Morris, H. H. Steinfeld, Morris Weinberg, and Morris Tessler.

LONG FREIGHT RATE HEARING CONCLUDED

The Southern class rate hearing which has been in session at the Piedmont hotel for the past four weeks closed Wednesday, and the case will be briefed and argued before the interstate commerce commission in Washington before any order relative to the investigation will be given.

I present my friend, Mr. Eastman, of the interstate commerce commission, and Examiner H. J. Wagner conducted the hearing. Commissioner Eastman had been out of the city for a few days prior to the closing, but returned to Atlanta Wednesday.

The investigation of which this hearing is a part was started in May, 1922, and the point of territory covered by the largest investigation ever undertaken by the Interstate Commerce commission.

It affects class rates on freight travel coming into or going out of territory south of the Potomac and Ohio river and east of the Mississippi.

At the hearing, the case was presented by the Interstate Commerce commission.

BEAUTY CHATS BY EDNA K. FORBES

THOSE SWEEPING LASHES.

I doubt whether any woman is quite satisfied with her eyelashes. Each one would like to possess lashes a little longer, a little thicker, perhaps a little curlier than those she already has. The result is that many firms selling plain vaseline mixed with some impressive sounding and impressive smelling drug have made fortunes.

Vaseline I consider of little use. It is a mineral product and is not nourishing. But the following mixture I know to be excellent.

Eye-lash Tonic.
Cocoa butter.....1 dram
Paraffin.....4 drams
Lanoline.....1-2 dram
Oil of sweet almonds.....4 drams
Any perfumed oil.....2 drops

Everything in this formula helps to grow hair. It makes a very thick cream which will not rub into the lashes until it has warmed itself against the skin. A few more drops of the perfume oil or another dram of cocoa butter would give you a more easily managed cream which would really be as good. However, I prefer it as given above.

The first part of any definite treatment for the lashes is to sacrifice a little of their present length by clipping them back. Your manicure scissors with the curve of the points away from the face are very good for this. It is to take you had best do yourself with your hand mirror and a good light. After three months I would advise clipping again and meantime the use every few nights of this cream.

Rub a little into the skin and rub well all round the lower and upper lashes. Wipe off the cream not in direct contact with the hairs. It doesn't matter how much goes around the eyes, as being very nourishing it is good for crows feet. Hair will not grow here.

A. L. S.: There is no particular reason why a girl should use eye powder. It should never be used at all unless it is actually needed and then most sparingly, surely never so it shows on the skin. Drink more water, eat less of your diet for a time, and your skin will not be so oily, but when it is removed it will leave your skin looking much better than it did of powder.

Brown Eyes: A girl 16 years who is inclined to skin eruptions should not resort to any cosmetics to improve her complexion. There are physical causes for this trouble which will probably correct themselves provided the girl lives according to the requirements of health.

Cupid: When you receive a gift directly from the donor, by all means open the package and do your thinking in the same informal way as the giver has done by delivering the package to you in person.

Tomorrow—Well Protected Hands.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the Beauty Chats department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

How You Can Make Hairs Quickly Disappear (Helps to Beauty)

Even a stubborn growth of hair will quickly vanish from the face, neck or arms after a single treatment with delatone. To remove hair from arms, neck or face make a stiff paste with a little powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy places and after about two minutes rub off, wash the skin and it will be left free from hair or blemish. To avoid disappointment, be quite certain you get real delatone and mix fresh as wanted.—(adv.)

The Eternal Eve

"As I grew older I can see now that I grew pretty rough." An odd smile played about his mouth, and to Eve it seemed as though he had never been more attractive than at that moment.

"It's a wonder I didn't run on the rocks altogether. I showed a strong interest in pool parlors and card places, though I was too young to take and real part in the games."

"There's one good thing to say for me—I wasn't a 'sissy' anyhow!" he remarked.

Silence again. The airman pressed a block of wood back into the fire with a well-shod foot, and a shower of little sparks flew upwards. Eerily the rain rattled against the windows.

"At school I was just crazy over football. I used to despise the boys who went with girls. 'Sissies' I called them. I didn't want a girl—except my sister. I was very fond of her. His voice sank suddenly and a mist seemed to come across his eyes."

"I didn't know you had a sister," said Eve quietly, wondering. "What was she like?"

He did not turn his head.
"Like you," came the reply at last. "Dark—and alive—and pretty!"

He broke off.
"Tell me some more," Eve leaned forward.

"We were great pals—I was very fond of her," he went on.

"Where is she now?" said Eve eagerly.

"She died when she was eighteen," came the very quiet answer, rather husky—and only the rain outside as it beat against the window broke the silence in the room.

Quick tears had sprung to Eve's eyes.

She put a timid hand out and touched his sleeve. She wanted desperately to express her sympathy.

In the shadow of the flames she watched the outline of his head. Here was a man that she could trust. Here was some one stronger, better than herself, some one who had carved his own life out of nothing, some one unutterably to be relied on.

He was looking at her now, intently.

"A penny for your thoughts," said Eve, trying to smile, but unsuccessfully.

"I was thinking," came the answer slowly, "what a lucky man he'd be to whom you gave your love!"

Eve stared in bewildered fashion. For a moment it seemed to her as though she had scarcely heard aright.

"A lucky man—to whom I gave my love," she repeated blankly.

Willfred nodded.

"He no longer connects me with his future," she told herself, with an odd little contraction of the heart. But aloud she merely said, in a voice she hoped was equally blank.

"Indeed you flatter me!"

The sarcastic intonation was not lost upon the other.

"Upon the contrary—I have the reputation of being extraordinarily blunt!"

"There are men in this world who are capable of talking absolute truth to you, though perhaps—up to the present—you haven't met them."

He went on evenly. "There are also men with will-power so strong that even you—even you would find it hard to turn them from their course."

Eve flushed. In that inquisitive, restless brain of hers she was wondering desperately if this were meant in compliment or in disparagement.

When she spoke it was in a cold little voice that was intended to freeze this impertinent young man.

"The ways of men don't interest me, nor have I any ambition to turn them from their course. To tell the truth," she added, with an almost comical little air of dignity, "I find the majority of men impossibly boring."

"Oh, no, that isn't true!" He sat up suddenly. "You're much too vivid and awake for that. Why not be frank?"

Eve wheeled around, a pink spot of indignation burning in each pretty cheek.

"How—how can you?" she began, stammering.

"You may think that I'm transgressing all the laws of politeness," went of the attractive voice beside her, "but don't you know that I, too, can study character as well as yourself? Did you never think that one reason for my avoidance of so-called 'society' might be—prettiness?"

"The tone didn't interest me," marked the girl.

But the other continued resolutely: "We aren't blind, we men, although I will admit the majority of us are fools! Take your own case, for instance." He laid a compelling hand on Eve's arm and gently forced her back into her chair. "If you succeeded in making an impression on me—mind, I don't say whether you have or haven't—what would it not be in the case of other men?"

Eve tried to speak, but her lips felt unaccountably dry and parched. And he went on:

"I sit here looking at you, wondering over the long, long trail of men who have lost their heads about you, trying to analyze your attraction, and almost wanting to write you down as erud in my mind."

"Why—erud?" whispered she. "Perhaps for self-protection—perhaps because it is the truth," came the disconcerting answer.

Then he added reflectively: "I shouldn't say that you were 'experimental,' rather."

"What—what do you mean?" He puffed at his cigar before he spoke again.

"You've got the gambler's instinct, like so many pretty women," he resumed at last, "only the game is life, not cards." He flung a critical glance at her. "With a trump hand such as yours, you couldn't resist the temptation of a plunge! The Eternal Eve personified!"

"A trump hand?" repeated the girl mechanically.

The other nodded.

"All the leading cards—shall I enumerate them?" he said, smiling an odd little smile and looking intently at her. "Here goes, then. First, there's Beauty. Men fall for that."

"Next to the quality of Sympathy, you must be something back of it. Next there comes Sympathy. Oh, you're surprised that I give it second place? But I do. It's more important than beauty. We won't call it sympathy—but 'Playing Up.' It's enormously essential. I should judge you've always 'played up' well."

He broke off for a moment.

"Next to the quality of Sympathy, you've got Good Brains," went on the tranquil voice. "You're fresh—original—amusing."

"You flatter me," said Eve again ironically, "but I'm gripping tighter at his heart. There had been no hint of love."

"I've omitted the most important thing of all—the one that knocks all the others on the head—I mean, that makes them negligible," resumed the airman slowly. "It's a kind of personal magnetism that hangs about you. It's just a kind of superabundant vitality and good feeling, high spirits, if you like—but men fall for it at once."

"What a splendid man-trap! He held up his hand. Eve, her little head bent just slightly, but with resentment in her heart.

"It's not a pretty word—but I should say it's rather near the truth!" came back the answer.

"Oh, a kind of flypaper where the flies come nibbling," went on the unrepentant young woman. "What a perfectly delightful nuisance in life!"

He wheeled round on her.

"You've nearly always found it so," he said abruptly. "Certainly you've filled the bill."

A pause. The rain was pouring down outside, but to Eve the sound of it was no longer kindly.

She could not sit there silent, thinking. They had so little time together. If only she could make one desperate bid for happiness.

"You said something about the 'long, long trail of men who'—"

"Who lost their heads over you?" supplemented the other quietly. "Well, haven't they? Isn't it true?"

She did not answer.

Her companion asked abruptly: "How many men, for instance, have wanted to marry you in the last few years?"

"An awful lot of men—I'd hate to tell you just how many," she said slowly, all her gay air of independence gone.

Then suddenly she remembered Mary's words about a woman's "consciousness of charm." Even a plain woman, granted she had self-assurance, could succeed.

She plucked up spirit.

"You men are just like sheep, anyhow," she said coolly. "You love to pay attention to the girl that other men adore. It's the old provok over again—Nothing succeeds like success."

"The success may be inglorious," hazarded the other.

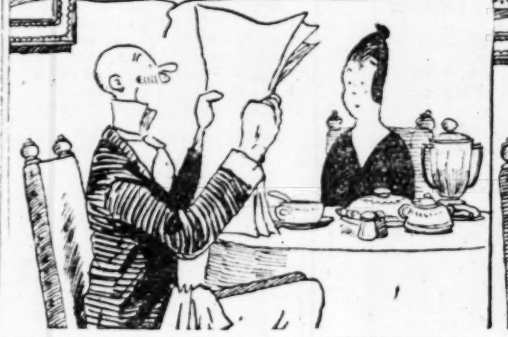

"Granted," said Eve tartly. "Men being what they are!"

The airman smiled.

"I dare say I'm a bit old-fashioned," he poked her cheek abstractedly. "And primitive. If I'd a girl of my own I'd want to keep her all to myself."

"That's merely masculine vanity," he turned and smiled at her. "Perhaps? And yet—I don't know

SO SKINK IS ANXIOUS TO GET THAT TRIAL STARTED—THAT'S THE WAY THE KAISER FELT ABOUT THE WAR—THAT FELLOW STARTING TROUBLE WITH ME IS JUST LIKE A POMERANIAN PUP TEASING A WILD-CAT OR A CAPTURED SPY MAKING FACES AT THE FIRING SQUAD.

"I guess I could be awfully fond of some one!"

"You're not logical," said Eve. "You like the things that other men admire—and get you pretend to despise the girls who have those qualities! You've got some kind of ideal in your mind—yet you want her to be a forlorn wallflower—an Admires Eve."

"Is her name Eve?" inquired the airman, amused.

The khaki-clad young lady flushed. "Speaking impersonally"—she began.

"That would be impossible with you," he moved a little nearer to her.

But Eve drew back, her active mind reverting to an earlier part of the conversation.

"Since you have such an extraordinarily poor opinion of me, why did you say that the man to whom I gave my love would be so lucky?" she inquired. A direct challenge was written on her face.

"Because he would be!" came the quick answer. "Falling in love would change you very much."

"In what way?"

"He smiled indulgently, as though she were a child.

"Oh, lots of ways. Give you balance, poise, a reason for existence. Stop all that feverish running after false gods. Yes, love's a curious thing."

"You seem to know a lot about it!" Her level gaze met his.

"I haven't any wish to play the role of siren," then?

"Why don't you go back to the backwoods women, with their naturalness and honesty and wearable qualities?"

"Please go on," said Eve.

I'VE BEEN TRYING TO GET THAT OLD FOY INTO THE OPEN FOR MONTHS AND HERE HE WALKS OUT IN FRONT OF ME LIKE A MOOSE IN FRONT OF A WHITE SHEET—WHAT A TARGET FOR ALL THE EVIDENCE I'VE GOT READY TO SHOOT INTO HIS HIDE—

Captain Roscommon touched her hand as though he vaguely wished to apologize, then drew it back again, and for a moment stared moodily into the glowing fire.

Then, flinging away the stump of his cigar, he ground it carefully with his heel into his hearthstone and said slowly:

"There's something that I want to tell you, Miss Eve. I'm a simple, primitive sort of fellow—but, believe me, I haven't any wish to hurt you. I'll tell it to you in an indefinite kind of way and get it off my chest."

"Over here in England I met some one I—I liked awfully much. Too much!" said Willfred. "I won't say who she is beyond the fact that you—well—you know her pretty well. I behaved like a lost man in those circumstances—lost my head a bit!"

"Yes—Please go on," said Eve.

The other gave a cheery smile.

"I found my head again; that's all," he said.

Silence in the room. The girl turned abruptly to a little heap of wood beside her chair, and carefully placed some scraps of log upon the fire.

She hoped he did not see her face. "You didn't care for her, then, after all?" Her laugh was so well timed that it sounded almost natural.

"I won't say that. Only circumstances altered things!"

"Such as?"

"Oh, too many others in the field!" He narrowed his eyes as he stared up at an odd sporting print that adorned the wall.

"The man in the story wasn't a real sportsman if he couldn't take a fence or two!" she observed with sudden spirit.

"And then?"

"And then the fool awoke to the

WHEN THIS TRIAL IS OVER I'LL HAVE THAT OLD MOOSE HEAD OVER MY MANTEL STUFFED TO THE EYEBROWS WITH BALLOTS LIKE HE STUFFED THE BALLOT BOXES—

"There was one big fence she shielded at!"

"Yes?"

"He cared for her unselfishly—at least, he tried to. And he cared for her happiness more than for his own."

The young man swung round in his chair, and a curious light was in his eyes as he regarded Eve.

But a great loud seemed to be pressing intolerably on that young woman's heart.

"You—you didn't tell me—if this girl cared at all?" It seemed to her as though another voice was speaking not her own.

"There was a time," he said deliberately, "a happy, idiotic, wonderful time, when it seemed as though she did care—He broke off, fumbling with an unlit cigar.

"And then?"

"And then the fool awoke to the impossibility of it all," he went on lightly, "for how could he compete with men who had money, position?"

"Perhaps the girl didn't care for money?" hazarded Eve a little tremulously. "Perhaps?"

He silenced her with a small, commanding gesture, and a short, rather bitter laugh.

"This isn't the girl's affair—it's mine," he said in his old masterful way.

"You—you might—break her heart!" The words came very low. "It takes—two—to play those games."

Silence again in the room. Modestly he stared into the fire. Was she only playing with him? Was she not the fiancée of a rich, eligible man? He wasn't going to be made a fool of a second time. And yet she was so attractive, so lovable!

Brilliant Artists Heard In Wonderful Broadcast From WGM at Midnight

Mrs. Marcelle Stanton Megahee Sponsored Program Which Added Fresh Laurels to WGM's History.

Lingering in the memory as a treasure, Station WGM's third regular Wednesday midnight concert is history. Sponsored by Mrs. Marcelle Stanton Megahee, charming young Atlanta matron, whose marvelous mezzo-soprano voice has endeared her to thousands of song lovers in America, the beautiful musical program which "out on the air" promptly at the "zero hour" from the Constitution's station radio broadcast, and shedding new glory and lustre upon the long list of WGM's successful recordings by State-wide.

The splendidly arranged program and accompaniment, thus affording the variety and quality of musical entertainment which has characterized the success of this station and which has earned it the reputation of being the "South's standard newspaper."

Mrs. Megahee's arrangement presented Miss Jeanne Wynne, pianist; Mrs. Myers, saxophonist; and Mrs. Megaw, violinist. These artists, trained before the microphone in entertaining thousands of midnight listeners.

"Mrs. Megahee's numbers, including 'Mr. Rocco' and 'If You Could Care', were revelations. She seemed to sing into the microphone with a voice of pure, rich and most delightful tones. In all her previous appearances at this station, she never sang quite as beautifully as last night. One might use all the beautiful adjectives and epithets without doing full justice to Mrs. Megahee's contribution to the midnight concert. Wynne, pianist, seemed to be imbued with the same spirit as Mrs. Megahee. Her piano accompaniment technique that few pianists command from this station, heard equal. Listeners who patiently awaited the hour for the midnight concert were adequately repaid for their wait. Mrs. Wynne's wonderful rendition in clarity, and more than adequate mastery of the finished music popular with fans of this station, was a contribution to the station for enthusiastic applause."

Mr. Myers' saxophone was never so eloquent as last night. His solos were distinct and clear in a manner which stamped him as an artist of the highest caliber. The fans of the nation and this was augmented by his contributions last night.

NEW YORK, March 14.—The feature in today's cotton market was the feature of the census bureau on domestic consumption for February.

This started active buying in both old and new crop months and all the old crop positions made new high records for the season, with May contracts selling at 31.30, or 34 points net higher and 111 points above the low of last year. The advance was checked at this figure by realizing and May sold off to 31.19 in the later trading, closing at 31.23 in the general market, leaving barely steady net three points lower to 20 points higher.

The market opened firm, 11 to 24 points higher on the census figures and relatively early sales. There was a good deal of realizing at the initial advance, but it was absorbed on comparative moderate reactions and the market moved up again on a broadening demand which was supposed to include covering by both trade and speculative shorts.

The census figures showing 506,924 bales consumed in the United States in February and the heaviest for that month on record, was regarded as emphasizing the prospects for a very small carryover at the end of the season and this, combined with rather unsettled weather conditions in the south, appeared to bring in trade buying of early new crop deliveries as well as old crop months. March sold up to 31.35, May to 30.74 and October to 27.07, making net advances of 32 to 47 points on the general list.

The buying movement tapered off in these figures and the market turned easier under realizing which was particularly active in May deliveries. Wall street and western long interests in May were supposed to be liquidating on the reaction, about 40 points from the best. March sold off to 31.00 or 3 points net lower and October to 26.70 and last prices were about the level of the day, with near months relatively easy. February 20.34, United States port stocks, 703,142.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON MAKES NEW RECORD.

New Orleans, March 14.—A broad demand in the first half of the session in cotton today put the market to new high levels for the season on two months, May and July, May trading up to 31.00, and July to 30.60, and sent other months up a few points of previous high points. In the second half of the session a group of realizing came on the market and caused reactions so that from advances of 42 to 52 points, the market fell off until it closed net, unchanged to 13 points from the high of the day, with near months relatively easy. February 20.34, United States port stocks, 703,142.

The early decline was stimulated by better cables than the census bureau report of 506,924 bales consumed in this country during February, which was higher than the previous record of 490,000 bales, and even bullish traders were shaken by the unfavorable barometer lines on the weather map. Highest prices were following the issuance of a storm warning for the coast as the result of the expected movement eastward of the disturbance centered this morning over the southeastern portion of the Rocky mountains. Considerable buying was done on the forecast of unsettled to showery and rainy weather for the greater portion of the week because it was feared that planting and the cotton would be still further delayed. Stock accounts were rather mixed, but locally, prices were marked up 25 points for the new high record price for the season of 31.25 cents a pound for middling.

A Permanent Home

In all the loveliness with which nature has endowed it, enriched during the past twelve years by the skill and artistry of landscape architects (at a cost of over two million dollars), Druid Hills stands out today as the largest section devoted exclusively to individual, permanent homes in America!

Permanent — because the restrictions to prevent undesirable encroachment upon these homes, will always remain in force. No apartment houses, stores, filling stations nor sanitariums can infringe upon the residential advantages of Druid Hills.

Indeed, Druid Hills, with its regulations to protect the property owners, has solved the question of shifting and changing residential sections, the problem of every city, including our own.

When you think of a home of your own, consider permanence first. Without the slightest obligation on your part, we will gladly take you over the property and let you judge for yourself the desirability of this beautiful section. Call either at our downtown office or at our office on the property.

Water, gas, sewer mains, as well as light and telephone lines are laid right to the owner's property line—affording every convenience.

ACES' ORCHESTRA AT LYRIC THEATER

Warner's Seven Aces, one of the nation's best known and most popular orchestras, will be heard at the Lyric theater on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, as an added attraction. Thus, theatergoers of Atlanta have an unusual opportunity of hearing the noted Constitution orchestra during the remainder of the week.

The Seven Aces have forged to the front ranks in orchestras during the past few months, playing for leading clubs and universities in the south, and appearing daily at Station WGM. The Atlanta Constitution. No orchestra in the nation is better known or more popular with lovers of orchestra music. Flattering offers to enter vaudeville, or to fill long engagements in New York and other leading cities, have been flatly turned down by the Aces who have preferred to continue to play in Atlanta and the south. It is known, however, that several unusual offers are being considered for summer engagements and it is practically certain that the Aces will leave the city for the summer months early in June.

As an attraction at the Lyric theater the remainder of this week, Warner's Seven Aces will be the feature attraction. Thousands of local admirers will hear them at the popular playhouse and those who have not heard the Aces will marvel at the incomparable orchestrations, rendered in that inimitable "Warner style."

Many of the newest song and dance selections now racing in popularity at New York and Chicago, will be introduced for the first time to Atlanta music lovers by Warner's Seven Aces.
